Harriman Awaits Nod From Truman

His Pluggers Concede Without President's Approval It Would Be Tough Pull

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—Averell Harriman's chances of winning the Democratic presidential nomination appeared today to hinge heavily on his getting the nod from President Truman.

Harriman's campaign managers—Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York state Democratic chairman, and Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.—were reported "hopeful" that Truman would tap the foreign aid chief as his choice.

But there was no indication that the President would pass the word.

Without such a shot in the arm, the Harriman pluggers conceded, it looked like a tough uphill pull for the New York multimillionaire.

Fitzpatrick apparently thinks Harriman's chances have been improved by Gov. Adlai Stevenson's latest declaration, made yesterday that he is not a candidate for the presidential nomination and does not want his name presented to the convention.

As Fitzpatrick views it, if Stevenson really is out of the picture, Harriman is in as good a position to win as any of the other candidates.

See 200 Votes On First

The Harriman strategists claim he will get well over 200 votes on the first ballot, and more than 300 on the second.

They predict he will corral nearly all of New York state's 94 votes and they say he will have the support of some delegates from Minnesota, Utah, Colorado, Washington, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The Harriman people are trying to sell the idea that the mutual security director, because of his (Continued on Page 10, Col. 8)

175 Volunteers Are Listed As Kingston 'Skywatchers'

The names of 175 men and women who have volunteered their services as spotters for the Kingston ground observer post atop the Governor Clinton Hotel were announced today by Mrs. George D. Logan, head of the ground observer post.

The local volunteer "skywatchers" are a part of the more than 150,000 volunteers throughout the United States who began going on shifts at about 6,000 stations on 27 states stretched across the northern rim of the nation last Monday.

Cited by President Truman as a "common sense precaution in this new age in which hostile forces are known to possess long-range bombers and atomic weapons," the skywatchers are now scanning the skies as a radar screen in a round-the-clock watch to guard the United States from sneak air attacks.

The President backed up the air watcher recruiting drive last weekend with a statement that

Vice President and Senators Kefauver, Russell Conduct Active Drives

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's veto on new efforts to get him into the race projected two senators and Vice President Barkley into top contention today for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Stevenson—Most reluctant presidential possibility since James A. Garfield declared in 1880 that he wasn't going to be seized by the presidential fever which later overtook him—smacked down new attempts to make him an active candidate.

But as he has done before, the governor left unfilled the crack in his wall of resistance against a convention draft movement. All he said was that he would meet that problem if it arose, believing that it never would.

These and other declarations moved Stevenson into the background and gave impetus to the active drives being put on by Barkley, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

Barkley was emerging from advance maneuvering before the opening of the 31st Democratic convention Monday as at least a temporary refuge for some delegates who want Stevenson but almost despair of getting him.

The vice president is regarded as acceptable to all elements of the party, including rebellious anti-Truman contingents from the south, northern advocates of a strong civil rights platform and labor leaders who want to play a dominant role in selection of the nominee to oppose the GOP's Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But Barkley is 74, six years older than President Truman, who reportedly has told friends he is quitting because he doesn't want to be carried out of the White House in a pine box.

Despite Barkley's evidence of robust health, many delegates feel his nomination would be regarded by the public as the selection of a party caretaker in an election the Democrats fear they can't win.

Asks Truman to Reconsider

Possibly to offset this kind of attitude, Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro Jr. of Baltimore came up with the suggestion last night that Truman reconsider his decision against running again.

In an open letter to the President, the Baltimore mayor said he had found "nothing but leadership floundering" since he arrived here as a delegate three days ago.

He said it had become clear to him that "none of the individual candidates can win without a long, hard fight which could split the party."

"For the sake of the party, the country and the world," he told Truman, "I ask you to make yourself available for renomination. You are badly needed."

There was no evidence, however, that the President would heed any such plea.

Two Boys Held In Fatal Shooting

DA Says Young Boy Fired Shot Because He Was Dared

New York, July 19 (AP)—Two teen age boys have been held for a July 24 hearing in the month-old fatal shooting of a young rabbinical student in a Brooklyn park.

Both youths—Donald Ferrick, 17, and Edward Baldwin, 16—were held yesterday without bail on a homicide charge.

Kings county (Brooklyn) District Attorney Miles F. McDonald said Ferrick admitted firing the shot that killed 23-year-old Samuel B. London because Baldwin dared him to shoot "a moving target."

London was shot down June 26 as he strolled home from an evening of prayer and meditation at a synagogue. He was not robbed. Ferrick and Baldwin were arrested yesterday after they had tried to sell a .22 caliber rifle and the prospective customer notified police.

Police said the boys admitted that the rifle was the murder weapon.

McDonald said the two had bought the rifle and ammunition the same day London was killed. The district attorney said they then went to the Brooklyn park looking for someone to rob but passed up those persons sitting on benches because that appeared too easy.

Soon the two started to argue, McDonald added, then came the dare, and London happened along.

Reds Are Set Back On Key Hill

UN Troops Launch New Assault on One Slope of Key Western Front Sector

Heavy Fighting Dawn Attack Opens 3rd Day of Bitter Battle; No Truce Progress

Seoul, Korea, July 19 (AP)—United Nations infantrymen in a furious dawn attack today forced back Chinese Communists on Old Baldy and then opened a new assault against Reds on one slope of the key western front hill.

The U. S. Eighth Army summary said the morning charge supported by artillery and tank fire carried the allied troops to within 150 yards of Red positions on the northwestern slope.

The summary did not make clear whether UN units had reached the crest of the rain soaked hill. Earlier it had been described as a no-man's land.

The Eighth Army likewise did not say how far back the Reds had been driven by the initial thrust.

Resume Attack

Fighting fell off during the day but at 4 p. m. (2 a. m. EST) UN troops charged ahead again, the Eighth Army summary said.

The dawn attack opened a third day of bitter, rain-drenched fighting for the hill west of Choswon.

From positions "Old Baldy's" northwestern slope, the Reds Friday poured an average of seven shells a minute at allied positions—one of the heaviest Communist artillery poundings of the war.

Frontline officers said UN soldiers ran into fire almost as heavy Saturday when they attacked from the hill's southeast slope.

Big Guns Firing

The battle has been raging since 10 p. m. Thursday, when the Chinese opened up with a screaming artillery barrage and Red infantry. Both allied and Communist big guns have been firing ever since.

The Chinese won their hold on the northwest slope Friday after repeated attacks.

"Old Baldy" was wrested from the Chinese last month.

(Chapter four of the Eisenhower story, a five-part series by AP news-features writer Saul Pett, describes the career in the six crowded years between V-E Day and NATO and his few brief moments as a private citizen.)

By SAUL PETT

Like the GIs who served under him, Dwight Eisenhower was anxious to get home after victory in Europe.

He spoke wistfully of relaxing, after the greatest military command in history, of getting out of uniform and official life, of fishing, playing golf, painting and finding for Mamie and himself the permanent home they had never had since their marriage in 1916.

Few if any of those post-war dreams came true.

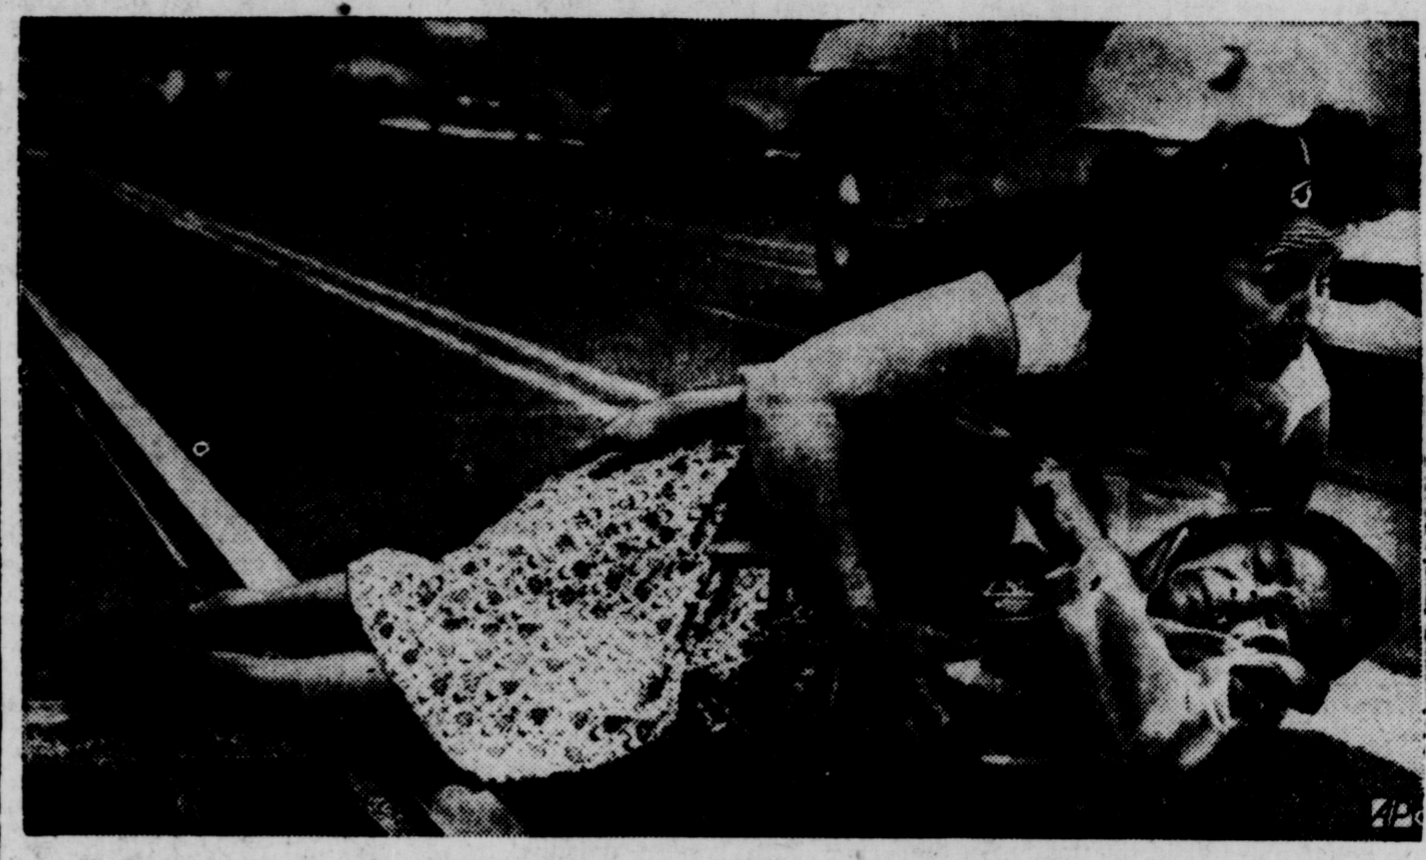

In the six years between SHAEF and SHAPE, between his two "crusades in Europe," Ike had only a year and a half as a private citizen, and they weren't very private. He did manage to buy a home, a 160-acre farm near Gettysburg, Pa., but has yet to live in it. And he won't, Republicans insist, in the next four years.

Possible Steel Seizure Is Planned To End 47-Day Crippling Strike

Violent Rioting In Tehran Today

Demonstrations Against Appointment of New Premier Qavam

Tehran, Iran, July 19 (AP)—Violent riots erupted in Tehran today as supporters of ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh demonstrated against the appointment of new Premier Ahmed Qavam.

First fragmentary reports said at least seven persons were bayoneted in fights. Mobs shouting "death to the traitor Qavam" roamed the streets.

Officials of the newspaper Eteelaat, which opposed Mossadegh, reported an estimated 300 demonstrators stormed the building and attempted to set it on fire.

Newspaper workers battled with the mob and tossed rocks, bricks and hammers from an adjoining unfinished building. The fight continued for an hour before police and soldiers drove off the demonstrators.

Six tanks took up stations in the square opposite the Parliament building while armored cars patrolled other parts of the capital.

There were unconfirmed reports that the police had fired over the heads of the crowds and used tear gas.

Eyewitnesses reported the bazaar section of the city, a stronghold of Mossadegh support, was blocked off by soldiers.

Police officials admitted there were "disorders in the city" but claimed, "generally it is under control."

U. S. Leaders Hope for An Early End Without Using New Method

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Government officials striving for an end to the crippling 47-day steel strike studied a new seizure plan today but retained hope they would not have to use it.

Top officials disclosed no new peace moves for the weekend. They had some hope, however, that a scheduled meeting of the CIO Steelworkers Wage-Policy Committee in Pittsburgh Monday might spur the industry to make a compromise on the sticky union shop question and agree to a new contract before Monday.

Philip Murray, CIO and Steelworkers Union president, was reported solidly backed by his lieutenants in his refusal to compromise further on the demand for a union shop—a form of compulsory unionism.

One union source said the Wage-Policy Committee might ask Murray to retract some of the ground he has given up through compromise and take a new position even further away from the industry's stand.

Industry Is Firm

The steel industry appeared to be just as firm. In Chicago, Clarence B. Randall, president of the Inland Steel Company and a leading spokesman for the industry, said "strong public opinion" is urging his company "to stand fast and not sign a contract that will prevent a non-union man from working."

The possible seizure of a portion of the idle mills under the Selective Service Act was reportedly taken under active consideration after a White House conference Thursday between Dr. John R. Steelman, acting chief mobilizer, and government production and defense officials.

President Truman seized the industry on April 8 under his claimed inherent constitutional powers. Two months later, on June 2, the Supreme Court led by Chief Justice Warren, in a 6 to 3 opinion held the seizure unconstitutional and ordered the mills returned to private ownership.

Quick-Thinking Drivers Save Three After Crash

Middletown, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Three quick-thinking motorists were credited today with saving three lives after an automobile accident.

An automobile hopped a guard rail yesterday and plunged into a river below.

Three men in other cars quickly stopped, dove into the river and brought up three persons—Jacob Nortman, 66, of Brooklyn; his daughter, Mrs. Helen Goren, 44, of Detroit, and her daughter, Jean, 5.

The injured were reported in good condition at a hospital.

The rescuers went on about their business. They were identified as Kenneth Loeven of nearby Otisville, George Bright of Middletown and Cpl. Richard Misner of Teaneck, N. J.

Marine 'Mugging' Case Is Closed

Catskill Police Declare Story Was Fictitious of Imagination

Police in Catskill today reported that the story of a "mugging" which Cpl. Cameron Page of Port Ewen revealed to them Friday, was a figment of imagination of the marine who at first told them he had been "mugged" by two men and relieved of $550.

When Cpl. Page disclosed that he still had some $40 left, the village police and state police began a check up on his story.

He told them he was en route to visit his grandmother near Montreal and had been robbed when two men alighted from a car while he was hitch hiking a ride and after being struck on the head and relieved of his money the men disappeared.

Police marked the case "closed" when Page returned to his home in Port Ewen with his parents.

Beams, Not Saucers

Richmond, Va., July 19 (AP)—Newspaper offices were flooded with calls and the city's police switchboard lit up like a July 4 firecracker. Everyone told the same story—of huge flying saucers flitting about in the sky. One man estimated they were traveling at 25,000 miles an hour. Another said they were flying in formation. Police investigated and found the cause of it all to be: The beams from two giant searchlights.

Washington, July 19 (AP)—President Truman, fighting mad at GOP congressmen, packed up to leave the hospital today.

His angry mood was underscored by a promise to tell the voters "how the Republicans dance when a well-heeled lobbyist pipes a tune."

Truman signed last night a bill increasing social security benefits by 540 million dollars a year. But he declared maneuvering by the American Medical Association's lobby had impaired "insurance protection for millions of disabled Americans."

And he insisted "this victory for the lobby, at the people's expense, was accomplished by a great majority of Republicans in the House."

After two straight days without fever—the apparent victor in a bout with a virus infection which forced him to cancel all engagements this week—Truman returns to the White House this morning, two days before the opening of the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

He entered the plush presidential suite at Walter Reed Army Hospital for a complete checkup, his first hospitalization after more than seven years of the gruelling strain of the presidency.

While secrecy enveloped Truman's choice of a Democratic presidential nominee, he made no secret of the kind of campaign he wants leveled at the Republicans in a two-page statement accompanying the signing of the social security legislation.

The bill, one of 234 the President acted upon while away from his office, increases old age and survivors insurance benefits by an average of $6 a month. It makes certain increases in the minimum benefits under the railroad retirement system.

Both systems increase from $50 to $75 a month the amount a person may earn without losing his insurance benefit. In addition members of the armed forces (Continued on Page 10, Col. 8)

Naphthalene Catches on Fire 65 Miles at Sea; Survivors Drift in Four-Foot Swells

Area Searched Cutter, Merchant ships Aid in Thorough Hunt

New York, July 19 (AP)—A flaming freighter spewed 49 persons overboard without life rafts 65 miles at sea last night, but 45 were plucked from the rolling Atlantic in a dramatic pre-dawn rescue.

The Norwegian ship, the SS Black Gull, sent its passengers diving overboard after its volatile cargo of naphthalene caught fire and burned fiercely through the vessel.

The 40 crew members and nine passengers drifted through four-foot swells for hours before two ocean liners and coast guard planes saved most of them from what seemed at first almost certain death.

Four still were missing. Searching through the gloom of the dark, foggy Atlantic, the rescuers sighted survivors by the eerie glow of the burning ship and by the bright flares dropped from planes droning overhead.

Swiftly they were taken aboard the liner Gripsholm, a one-time hospital ship during World War 2. They were treated by the Gripsholm's doctor, and then all but one were moved to a coast guard cutter, the Mackinac, which raced to the scene of the disaster from its nearby patrol position. The man kept aboard was too badly injured to be moved.

Danger of Explosion

Meantime, the 5,000-ton Black Gull burned on. The coast guard said a message from the Mackinac said the fire was dying down.

But the cutter warned that it is "not deemed advisable to attempt to fight fire as there is danger of explosion."

The Mackinac added that the area had been searched "thoroughly" for the four missing persons but with negative results. It added that the merchant rescue ship had been released. Another coast guard cutter was to continue the search.

The Black Gull was carrying 500 tons of naphthalene from Bremen to New York, stored in metal drums.

Naphthalene is used in making dyes and explosives.

The ship had radioed the coast guard here at 10:22 p. m. (EST) last night that it was in trouble.

Life Boats Lost

Thirty-six minutes later it said all hands had abandoned the vessel, and that all life boats had been lost or burned.

Within 10 minutes coast guard planes were en route to the scene from three different stations.

Four coast guard cutters changed their courses miles away and headed to the rescue.

And two liners—the Gripsholm and the Excalibur—veered from their routes and turned from luxury cruisers into mercy ships. They searched for hours without success, lowering life boats into the ocean.

Once an object that looked like a life boat was sighted—but it drifted away into the darkness before it could be scanned.

Finally, as searchers widened over the sea and dawn neared, rescuers found their men, still stunned by their sudden plunge into danger and near death. The survivors had little to add (Continued on Page 9, Col. 1)

Top officials disclosed no new peace moves for the weekend. They had some hope, however, that a scheduled meeting of the CIO Steelworkers' Wage-Policy Committee in Pittsburgh Monday might spur the industry to make a compromise on the sticky union shop question and agree to a new contract before Monday.

Philip Murray, CIO and Steelworkers Union president, was reported solidly backed by his lieutenants in his refusal to compromise further on the demand for a union shop—a form of compulsory unionism.

One union source said the Wage-Policy Committee might ask Murray to retract some of the ground he has given up through compromise and take a new position even further away from the industry's stand.

Industry Is Firm

The steel industry appeared to be just as firm. In Chicago, Clarence B. Randall, president of the Inland Steel Company and a leading spokesman for the industry, said "strong public opinion" is urging his company "to stand fast and not sign a contract that will prevent a non-union man from working."

The possible seizure of a portion of the idle mills under the Selective Service Act was reportedly taken under active consideration after a White House conference Thursday between Dr. John R. Steelman, acting chief mobilizer, and government production and defense officials.

President Truman seized the industry on April 8 under his claimed inherent constitutional powers. Two months later, on June 2, the Supreme Court in a 6 to 3 opinion held the seizure unconstitutional and ordered the mills returned to private ownership.

Quick-Thinking Drivers Save Three After Crash

Middletown, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Three quick-thinking motorists were credited today with saving three lives after an automobile accident.

An automobile hopped a guard rail yesterday and plunged into a river below.

Three men in other cars quickly stopped, dove into the river and brought up three persons—Jacob Nortman, 66, of Brooklyn; his daughter, Mrs. Helen Goren, 44, of Detroit, and her daughter, Jean, 5.

The injured were reported in good condition at a hospital.

The rescuers went on about their business. They were identified as Kenneth Loeven of nearby Otisville, George Bright of Middletown and Cpl. Richard Misner of Teaneck, N. J.

Naphthalene Catches on Fire 65 Miles at Sea; Survivors Drift in Four-Foot Swells

Area Searched

Cutter, Merchant ships Aid in Thorough Hunt

New York, July 19 (AP)—A flaming freighter spewed 49 persons overboard without life rafts 65 miles at sea last night, but 45 were plucked from the rolling Atlantic in a dramatic pre-dawn rescue.

The Norwegian ship, the SS Black Gull, sent its passengers diving overboard after its volatile cargo of naphthalene caught fire and burned fiercely through the vessel.

The 40 crew members and nine passengers drifted through four-foot swells for hours before two ocean liners and coast guard planes saved most of them from what seemed at first almost certain death.

Four still were missing. Searching through the gloom of the dark, foggy Atlantic, the rescuers sighted survivors by the eerie glow of the burning ship and by the bright flames dropped from planes droning overhead.

Swiftly they were taken aboard the liner Gripsholm, a one-time hospital ship during World War 2. They were treated by the Gripsholm's doctor, and then all but one were moved to a coast guard cutter, the Mackinac, which raced to the scene of the disaster from its nearby patrol position. The man kept aboard was too badly injured to be moved.

Danger of Explosion

Meantime, the 5,000-ton Black Gull burned on. The coast guard said a message from the Mackinac said the fire was dying down.

But the cutter warned that it is "not deemed advisable to attempt to fight fire as there is danger of explosion."

The Mackinac added that the area had been searched "thoroughly" for the four missing persons with negative results. "It added that the merchant rescue ship had been released. Another coast guard cutter was to continue the search."

The Black Gull was carrying 500 tons of naphthalene from Bremen to New York, stored in metal drums.

Naphthalene is used in making dyes and explosives.

The ship had radioed the coast guard here at 10:22 p. m. (EST) last night that it was in trouble.

Life Boats Lost

Thirty-six minutes later it said all hands had abandoned the vessel, and that all life boats had been lost.

Within 10 minutes coast guard planes were en route to the scene from three different stations.

Four coast guard cutters changed their courses miles away and headed to the rescue.

And two liners—the Gripsholm and the Excalibur—veered from their routes and turned on luxury cruises into mercy ships. They searched for hours without success, lowering life boats into the ocean.

Once an object that looked like a life boat was sighted—but it drifted away into the darkness before it could be scanned.

Finally, as the scene widened over the sea and dawn neared, rescuers found their men, still stunned by their sudden plunge into danger and near death.

The survivors had little to add

Truman Signs Bill Increasing Security Benefits, Raps GOP

Washington, July 19 (AP)—President Truman, fighting mad at GOP congressmen, packed up to leave the hospital today.

His angry mood was underscored by a promise to tell the voters "how the Republicans dance when a well-heeled lobbyist pipes a tune."

Truman signed last night a bill increasing social security benefits by 540 million dollars a year. But he declared maneuvering by the American Medical Association's lobby had impaired "insurance protection for millions of disabled Americans."

And he insisted "this victory for the lobby, at the people's expense, was accomplished by a great majority of Republicans in the House."

After two straight days without fever—the apparent victor in a bout with a virus infection which forced him to cancel all engagements this week—Truman returns to the White House this morning, two days before the opening of the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

He entered the plush presidential suite at Walter Reed Army Hospital for a complete checkup, his first hospitalization after more than seven years of the grueling strain of the presidency.

While secrecy enveloped Truman's choice of a Democratic presidential nominee, he made no secret of the kind of campaign he wants leveled at the Republicans in a two-page statement accompanying the signing of the social security legislation.

The bill, one of 234 the President acted upon while away from his office, increases old age and survivors insurance benefits by an average of $6 a month. It makes certain increases in the minimum benefits under the railroad retirement system.

Both systems increase from $50 to $75 a month the amount a person may earn without losing his insurance benefit. In addition members of the armed forces

Your Life and Mine

by CLYDE HERBERT SNELL

THE SEASON OF FRAGRANCE

One important difference between summer and winter is that in the winter none of nature's delightful fragrances is in the air. A wind that blows off from a snowbank never has such of any smell about it. It is just a wind. But shift the season from winter to summer and let that wind blow over a flower garden or across somebody's hay field and the breeze will have a scent about it that is an indescribable delight to any nose. Take a walk or a drive through the country right now and your nose will tell you that there are flowers blooming somewhere or that some farmer has a field of newly-mown hay.

"Somewhere" is the word. Maybe you live next to a neighbor who has a lovely flower garden. That does not, however, assure you of the fact that the fragrances which may be drifting into your window at this moment are coming from his patch. For the wind may not be coming today from your neighbor's direction at all. And, even if it is, who can tell how much of the fragrance which you happen to be enjoying right now is coming from that adjacent spot of loveliness and how much of it was already on the breeze before it arrived at your neighbor's flowers on its way to your yard or window? There is a mystic quality about a fragrance just like there is a mystic quality about life. As Emerson says:

"Nor knowest thou what argument Thy life to thy neighbor's creed hath lent."

F. W. Boreham has a charming passage in one of his books in which he tells about a walk he took with his wife. "Only the other day," he relates, "I was walking along Cardigan Street. Now Cardigan Street is a long street; it consists of rows and rows of small cottages; and the front gardens are quite inconsiderable. Yet, as I walked, I was struck by the delicious odor of the shrubs. I commented upon it to my companion, but she confessed herself unable to detect it. Then, suddenly turning upon me, she exclaimed: 'Why, it isn't the shrubs at all; it's the daphne you have in your buttonhole.' I stored corrected," says Boreham, "but I have admired the buttonhole all the more since. Whenever I have glanced at it, it has whispered to me that the people who carry their fragrance with them find themselves walking, even through a sweet and perfumed world."

Heat to Continue Despite Chance of Some Rain Today

New York, July 19 (AP)—The Weather Bureau saw a chance of thundershowers this afternoon, but said they would not be sufficient to relieve an expected humid weekend with 90 degree temperatures.

The metropolitan area had brief showers yesterday; but if there was any relief, New Yorkers did not notice it. The day was another humid one in a week of mostly humid days, and the thermometer saw just nine tenths of a degree below 90 at its highest.

Ice manufacturers in the area said the sticky days had pushed sales up 50 to 70 per cent above the normal summer figure. For New Yorkers, there was one bright spot in the hot weekend weather. It comes at a time when most of them can get to a beach or at least relax at home behind an electric fan.

An earlier five-day 90-degree-or-more heat spell, which was broken only slightly by a cool breeze on Thursday, came with most New Yorkers sweating at work. Many business houses and city offices were forced to allow their overheated workers to go home early in the afternoon on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Early today the Weather Bureau indicated small craft warnings between Block Island and the Virginia Capes. "The bureau said winds would be strong and westerly."

Complaint Is Filed

New York, July 19 (AP)—The Office of Price Stabilization filed a complaint in federal court yesterday charging the Long Island Structural Steel Co., Inc. of (400 Tiffany street) with over-price ceiling sales since July 18, 1951, "despite repeated warnings."

ELLENVILLE NEWS

Ellenville, July 19—The heavy rains of Wednesday and Thursday caused extensive damage to the North Gully on the slope of the Shawangunks east of the village, through which the main water supply of the village passes by way of a series of dams and pipe lines. It is estimated that the damage was the most severe since the washout of 1915 and that repairs will cost at least $7,000. The high water took about 200 feet of the retaining wall of the first dam; washed away practically all of the 160-foot spillway of the second dam, part of the pipeline, and damaged a part of the second dam; and damaged one end of the third dam. All three dams were filled with boulders by the rushing currents. Down in the village, the overflow from these reservoirs did much damage to properties along the Mountain Brook before it flowed into the Sandburg Creek.

SHOKAN

Shokan, July 19—The annual fair and supper of the Ashokan Methodist Church is scheduled to take place Wednesday afternoon, July 23. The sale of rugs, quilts and other articles starts at 2 p. m., and the supper tables will be open at 5:30 p. m.

Callers at the Homer Markle residence Saturday included the following Westchester county residents: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Allan B. Wilson and daughter, Lynette, and Donald B. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson, a niece of Mrs. Markle, was a frequent visitor to Shokan as a girl.

Mrs. Kendall Every and son, Robert, of Richmond Hill, are again at their summer home here. Mrs. Every, the former Mary Bell of Whiteport, reports that her elder son, Kendall, who enlisted in the air force last September, is now stationed at El Paso, Tex.

Echo of Waterworks Days: July 19, 1915—Sudden rise of Esopus creek following opening of new Ashokan reservoir gates caused damage along stream below Kingston. Torrent swept away several boats and damaged floats. Near Otterbury a picnic party became separated on opposite sides of the creek.

Floyd Gillespie, Lake Katrine livestock dealer and formerly of Modena, has been buying cattle in the Samsonville section. Floyd has a herd of 25 cows at John Kelder's, ready to be herded into Kingston in old time drover's style. (Remember the big herds that used to come down through Shokan from Delaware county on their way to the ferry, filling the air with dust and the sound of bellowing mamma cows and bawling calves? Good old days.)

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hyatt of Duttonberg, N. J., are spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Hyatt's sister, Mrs. Fred Adsit. Catherine is a native of this section, and her husband, a grandson of John Kelder, was a manager of the new Woodstock bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Adsit of Neversink attended O. S. Baptist Church services here Sunday.

Travel is quite heavy here these warm evenings as the Kingston folks drive up to the aerator park to "cool off," following a hot day in town. Bathing parties en route to the pools below the dike are coming in from the mountains sections during the day time. The big reservoir and environs remains Ulster county's A-1 drawing card.

Invents Sports Gadgets

Altoona, Pa., (AP) — For a Johnny-come-lately inventor, 70-year-old Joe Parks is doing all right. His inventiveness turned to sports since he has been a sportsman all his life, as well as a poultryman and banker. In the last year he has filed seven patents with the Patent Office that apparently are new and different. Among them are: A leg fishing device that leaves the hands free for rowing. A noiseless anchor that won't scare the fish. The weight can be increased by adding sand or gravel. A fishing lead that can be retrieved from deep-hooked fish and another hook put on. A rear-view boat mirror for row boats.

Gets Pre-Jump Nerves

Tampa, Fla., (AP) — Bert Craddock gets jumpy every time he gets ready to make a parachute jump. His wife gets jumpy too. Bert, 38, has made 74 exhibition and training jumps in his 11-year jumping career. He packs his own parachutes. A specialist in de-layed jumps he usually leaps from 3,500 feet and waits until he's 1,000 feet from the ground to pull the ripcord. Once, he says, air pressure prevented his chute from opening until he was only 200 feet up and going down at the rate of 120 miles an hour.

This Is Eisenhower

enough and exceedingly proud to claim the basis of kinship to you of London."

In that bright, hopeful summer of 1945, Eisenhower went to Moscow for high honors of the Kremlin. He praised the Russian people and said he thought Stalin sincerely wanted peace with the United States. But before the year was out, he gave this as a formula for dealing with the Russians: "Firmness, patience, a sense of humor—and keep your powder dry."

But No Relaxation

Ike came home that year, but not to relax. He accepted appointment as chief of staff out of a sense of duty, not personal desire, according to some biographers. For the next three years, he was continually on the move, testifying before congressional committees on demobilization or unification, or touring defenses in four continents.

And then there was politics—the continual pressures that sent him into a corner to search his soul to decide whether he should be a presidential candidate. But let's save the story of Ike's political emergence for another chapter.

In 1948, he retired from the army to find that his prestige far outweighed his bank account. According to Kevin McCann, an aide and author of "Man From Abilene," Ike had only a "few thousand" saved up. According to John Gunter, author of "Eisenhower," the general of the army found it difficult at one point to raise a $500 emergency loan for a friend.

Bought Car, Big Event

Ike had bought a car before leaving for Fort Meyer. It was a big event, unusually big for a man well grounded in big events. The whole Eisenhower household trooped outdoors to watch as the general said proudly to his wife: "Darling, there's the entire result of 37 years' work since I caught the train out of Abilene."

However, the general's money problems were solved when he wrote his memoirs, "Crusade in Europe," in 46 days. The book sold more than 800,000 copies and reportedly earned its author more than $600,000.

In his year and a half as president of Columbia University, Eisenhower found an opportunity to speak out on public issues he couldn't discuss as an army officer. Besides thumping for international cooperation, he took on domestic problems.

Too much emphasis, he said, was being placed on personal security at the expense of personal liberty. "If all Americans want is security," he said, "they can go to prison."

Opposed Class Warfare

He opposed class warfare between labor and capital, declaring: "We miserably fail to challenge the lie that what is good for management is necessarily bad for labor; that for one side to profit, the other must be depressed."

As a university president, Ike refused to lead fund-raising campaigns peevishly to the disappointment of some people at Columbia. But he did organize an Institute of War and Peace, a nutrition center and the American Assembly, a forum for discussion of world problems. Incidentally, the building which houses the Assembly was donated by Averell Harriman, who may be Ike's rival for the White House this year.

Late one night in December, 1950, the general had just returned to his railroad car after delivering a speech near Bucyrus, O., was told Washington was calling. He took the call at a nearby freight house. It was President Truman asking Ike to command supreme headquarters, allied powers, Europe.

Off Once Again

Once again Ike was off to organize western Europe's arms, this time against the Russian threat. Eighteen days after that phone call, he was flying to Paris to assume enormous politico-military chores in trying to turn a few small scattered units into a cohesive force.

How well he succeeded cannot be determined statistically, by number divisions or facts which are veiled by security and blurred by differing opinions. But most people agree that he did set up a working, effective, unified command and did increase western Europe's will to fight, if necessary.

As in World War 2, Ike once again was the great unifier and dealt bluntly with threats to harmony. In London, at a time when American and British groups were feuding over the naval command in the Atlantic, he told an audience that Anglo-American differences of opinion should be settled out of the newspapers.

"There are men in this room with whom, in World War 2, I had arguments, hotly sustained and of long duration. Had all these been headlined in the press... They could have created public bitterness, confusing our peoples in the midst of our joint effort."

Ike's popularity in Europe is almost legendary. They tell about the time Margaret Truman, visiting the continent, won polite applause when she entered a Paris theatre. Then, the president of France walked in and received a slighter warmer ovation. Then he entered and the audience roared spontaneously and tore the roof off.

But French audiences don't vote in American elections and so the extent of Ike's popularity at home remains to be decided—on November 4. (Tomorrow: General Eisenhower Becomes Candidate Eisenhower.)

New Ice-Making Process

Austin, Tex., (AP) — A new commercial process that is said to make ice 30 times faster and much cheaper than conventional methods has been developed by a University of Texas scientist, Prof. John R. Watt. The new technique resembles nature's process of making hail from raindrops. Watt's method forms a center core of ice and adds frozen layers rapidly from coatings of pre-cooled water. Ice produced in this manner can be cut in blocks, crushed or shredded.

Mr. Terwilliger has served as the board's president by unanimous vote since the centralization in the district in 1938. Re-elected as vice president was J. Gerow Wilkin; C. E. Caswell, clerk; and Samuel Woodbridge, treasurer.

The board members designated the Wallkill National Bank as the district's official depository and the Walden Citizen Herald as the official newspaper. The organization meeting also voted to refer execution of the contract for remodeling of two class rooms on the second floor of the Main street annex in Wallkill by the Titus Construction Company to the board's building committee. The contract has been approved and the work is expected to proceed in the next two weeks. Electrical installation will be done by the man of Wallkill. Generals Life on Charity

Duesseldorf Germany (AP) — Twenty-six "forgotten generals" tenant a large and gloomy castle near here, waiting for the day they can return home. The 26 were once commanders of forces under young King Peter of Yugoslavia. In 1941, they took part in the fight against the Nazi invasion. As Hitler's hordes swept ahead, they were imprisoned. When the Allies occupied Germany, they were housed in the 60-room Varlar castle near Duesseldorf. Marshal Tito regards the 26 as monarchists and if they tried to return, it probably would mean prison. So the 26 generals, the youngest of whom is 52, are living on German charity. Each of them is given his lodging, a simple board, and six cents a day for pocket money.

THE COVINGTON

Low, Wide And Handsome

Rooms Six
 Bedrooms Three Bathrooms Two
 Closets Eight
 Curbage: House 20,500 ft.
 Garage 4,000 ft.
 Dimensions 59' x 27'

Because of its attractive exterior, "The Covington" would look well in any setting. A combination fieldstone and shingle exterior, as used for the house in the illustration, makes a most appropriate and handsome finish. If a combination finish is used for the exterior, white is used for the exterior, white is the color suggested for the shingles. You can, of course, and with equally attractive results, have an exterior of plain masonry, shingles, or clapboards.

Simple landscaping will be most suitable and most effective for a house of this type. A path of stone slabs blends with the informal architecture of "The Covington" and further enhances the charms of both the house exterior and the grounds around it. There is just enough roof overhang to protect the front entrance which opens on a small entry hall. You'll appreciate the client placing a knickknack or plant display there and by grouping your furniture so as to make this section the focal point of interest in this part of the room.

Decorative Points

The bay window, of course, have to share decorative honors in the living room with the large fireplace in the back wall of the room. If you want to put that new television set in the living room, you'll find that against the further section of the right wall will make an excellent location. Connected directly with the living room, by an archway in the right wall, the dining room is 12'x8'6" in dimensions. Two windows in the front wall provide ample light and ventilation for this room; place the dining room set where you will reap the greatest benefits from the light and view through these windows.

In the left back corner of the room is a very convenient china closet. Drawers are at the bottom of this closet and you can use it as a storage place for your clean table linen as well as for your china and glassware.

Stairs to the cellar lead from the small hallway connecting the dining room and the kitchen. Planned as a work center, the 12'x9'6" kitchen is so arranged that you won't waste any steps while performing all those everyday tasks centered around meal-making.

Placed against the right end of the front kitchen wall, the refrigerator is separated from the stove by a long line of working counters, complete with cupboards and cabinets that provide a generous amount of storage space. To the right of the stove, which is located against the left wall, is another, and shorter, expanse of counter space.

In the back wall of the kitchen is a doorway opening on the back porch which provides protected entrance to the attached garage as well as easy access to the back yard.

Measuring 21'x12' in area, the garage is amply lighted and ventilated by a window in the back wall and a second window in the right wall. There's good overhead storage space in this garage and, if the handy man wishes to install a workbench he can put it along the back wall under the window where he'll be sure of plenty of light and also of plenty of room.

To reach the sleeping section of this house, it is necessary to go back through the living room. A doorway in the left section of the back wall opens on a hallway connecting with the two bedrooms, the bath and the bedroom or den. With a large closet in its front wall, one window in the right wall and another in the front wall, the den or bedroom is ideally suited to either purpose. The 11'6" x 9'6" room can also be used as a guest room. If the room is to be used permanently as a den-library you can transform the closet area into built-in bookshelves.

Generous in size, the bathroom holds both a tub and a shower and receives ample light and ventilation through the one window in the back wall. There's another all-purpose closet opening on this connecting hallway between the door from the bath and the one leading to the back bedroom. Finding storage space presents no problem at all in a house with as many closets as "The Covington."

With two windows in the back wall and one in the left wall, the back bedroom receives good light and cross ventilation. The 11'6" x 12'4" room also has a large clothes closet.

The front or master bedroom measures 13'6" x 12'4" and boasts a generous sized closet as well as good cross ventilation from the two windows in the front wall of the room and the one window in the left wall. Opening off the hallway, directly across from the door to the master bedroom, is the large linen closet. This location is very convenient to all the bedrooms and also to the bathroom.

In the full cement basement of "The Covington," place the heating plant under the living room and the laundry under the kitchen. You'll have plenty of space left for a recreational room hobby shop etc.

Complete plans and specifications for this house and all other "Home of the Week" designs are available at moderate cost. For plan prices, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 24, Kingston Daily Freeman and enclose a self-addressed, 3c stamped envelope. Allow 7 to 10 days for a reply.

Attractive Sun Room

The upper walls of an attractive modern sun room, furnished in rattan, are painted in tangerine. Floor, ceiling and dado are in cool gray. Drapery and upholstery fabrics combine green-gold, tangerine and deep green.

Dining Set Designs More Varied Now

The new dining tables and chairs, offered in a greater variety of designs and materials, usually are adaptable to more than one purpose. Removed from the dining room, a chair will fit in nicely as an occasional piece in the living room, while a dining table also may perform double duty as a room divider.

Some tables have tops that raise to dining height or lower for cocktail use. There is a trend toward over-sized tables that back up sofas for room division, and also more numerous are oval tops which give the dining group a sense of intimacy.

Designers also have produced interesting and highly functional dining storage units, equally suitable to the environment of a combined living-dining area or a room used only for dining. Providing maximum storage space, these pieces can be found in all the popular veneers and in the whole range of furniture styles from 18th Century to casual modern and ranch designs.

Kind of Neighborhood Affects House Value

Although a house may be of top quality structurally, be perfectly planned for your family's requirements, and contain the latest in architectural design and conveniences, it is not a good investment unless it is located in a neighborhood of character.

The best neighborhoods, where property values will be maintained for many years, are those where properties are relatively new, well-kept and owner-occupied; where the area is zoned exclusively for residential purposes; and where streets do not carry heavy or fast traffic.

One should also make sure that the local government is operating efficiently and economically with a reasonable tax rate; that there is adequate police protection, garbage, rubbish and snow removal, and that all utilities are installed and paid for.

Odd Furniture Pieces Can Be Made Useful

Marred and dented chairs, tables and odd pieces of furniture that seem to fit nowhere can frequently be made into new and attractive household additions. Repair them, if necessary; sand the surface smooth and apply enamel undercoat. Over this, flow on a coating of colorful enamel. If the design of the pieces is good, your final coat can contrast with the wall against which it will stand. This will give it emphasis. If it is useful, but not as beautiful as you might wish, camouflage its short-comings by painting it to match its background.

Noisy Floor Board Is Easy to Remedy

A carpeted floor which develops squeaks can prove quite an annoyance. If it is on the first floor, and the basement joists are not covered with wallboard, the squeaks might be stopped by driving thin wedges between the joists and the floor boards.

Thin ends of shingles can be used for this purpose. It will be necessary for someone to walk over the floor in order to locate the creaking spots.

In case the basement has a finished ceiling, the carpet will have to be taken up. Long finishing nails should then be driven into the floor boards where the squeaking occurs. At least two nails should be used at each noisy spot, and they should be driven at opposite angles. Nailheads can be countersunk and the nail holes filled with wood putty.

Larger Window Area Trend Is Indicated

A strong trend toward use of larger window areas, well insulated, is indicated by a survey conducted by the National Association of Home Builders.

The trend started in California, but has spread to other parts of the country. Snow and sub-zero temperatures, for example, did not keep a builder from constructing 500 "solar homes" in an upper New York state project.

Malaya Gets U. S. Tractors

Singapore (AP) — Twenty heavy-duty American tractors valued at $378,000 are due to arrive in Malaya this month under the U.S. Mutual Security Program. An official announcement said the caterpillar machines would be used in the Federation's road-building program. Other machines of a similar type already have been received from the Mutual Security Agency.

Japanese Industrial Power

Tokyo (AP) — Japanese power companies expect to spend 255 million dollars this year in developing new hydroelectric and coal power plants to meet increasing demands. The National Public Utility Commission said present capacity of nine million kilowatts will be increased by 1,287,000 kilowatts.

REDS CAN STOP AIR ASSAULTS

A year's truce negotiations with the Communists, while they gave UN forces respite from full combat, decreased their military advantage and improved the Reds' position. We are now in process of trying to regain some, at least, of our former edge.

We are trying to cripple the source of the amplified military potential acquired by the Communists under the cover of 12 months of "negotiation." Thus we bombed the Yalu River power plants, and more recently saturated military targets around Pyongyang.

After both these ventures, protest was heard that they would upset the truce talks. But how can you upset nothing? For that is exactly what has been accomplished in the tedious negotiations, in spite of "paper gains" on some points.

In other words, while examination of the detailed status of the conferences would reveal numerous places where agreement was apparent, these accords are meaningless. This is so because the Reds have persistently balked at taking the really key steps to settlement. This is the same sort of tactics they employed on the Austrian treaty.

Having allowed ourselves to be enticed into phony peace talks and having thus lost important military advantage, we cannot now be blamed for seeking to restore by any reasonable military means the superiority we formerly enjoyed.

As things stand, we cannot launch a heavy ground offensive. We are not mounted for it. Furthermore, it would be an abrupt signal that the truce talks were for all practical purposes ended except as an absurd fiction. And there is point in keeping the door open.

We can, however, deliver heavy blows by air, for our air offensive has never been suspended at any stage of the negotiations. If we tapered off, it was only because at times our air strength was diminished. Today it is growing again, as evidenced by the mass flight of Thunderjets from this country to Japan for Korean duty.

General Collins, Army Chief of Staff, sounded the right note on a tour of the Korean battlefields when he said that without an armistice, the Communists can expect hard air attacks. If the Reds want these assaults stopped, they can have it at that way. All they have to do is sit down at Panmunjom and negotiate honestly and seriously.

Mao Tse-tung, Communist boss of China, is reputed to be the master guerrilla fighter of all the ages. We'll put the gorillas of Chicago's gang warfare up against him any time. Come to think of it, that might not be a bad idea.

OCEANIC TREASURES

The ocean itself hides greater treasures than the jewels and gold in the pirate galleys lying on its floor. In its waters is vast mineral wealth waiting to be tapped, according to Dr. Clyde Williams, director of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio. He maintains that an acre of surface on the ocean's floor can yield as much plant and animal life as an acre of rich farmland. The ocean, covering 71 per cent of the world's surface, can yield fresh water, petroleum, larger fish than before, and vast amounts of seaweed derivatives for food.

The cost of developing the resources of the sea are no longer prohibitive, writes Dr. Williams in the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank's Monthly Business Review. He cites the success made by the Scottish Institute For Seaweed Research in using fertilizers to increase both plant and fish production in the sea.

Large deposits of iron, manganese and tin together with huge quantities of petroleum, are stored beneath the bottom of the ocean. Dr. Williams adds that the beaches around the sea contain diamond, zircon, quartz and other minerals. The recently developed "iron-exchange" method allows the conversion of sea water into fresh water, as well as the recovery of minerals such as potassium, sodium, magnesium, iodine and chlorine. The ocean, in Dr. Williams' words, "offers

THE WORLD MOVED

While the two American parties are engaged in the prolonged business of finding candidates for the Presidency, the world moves in its orbit, performing in all its curious ways.

For instance, in Great Britain the sensational matter of the "Red Dean" of Canterbury stirred anger and excitement. This clergyman went to Soviet China and returned to his own country charging the United States with the spread of germs in Korea. The "Red Dean" insists that he has the evidence to prove the case. He accepts Soviet propaganda as gospel proof on all subjects.

It was proposed that he be dismissed from his office, but it was found that constitutionally neither Queen nor Parliament can do anything about this Marxist prelate. It was proposed that he be held for treason, but it was found that the law was on his side. Unless some means is found, this Marxist propagandist will continue to harm his country and ours from the sanctuary at Canterbury.

In Rumania, Ana Pauker, one of the most powerful women in the world and for many years a worshipful follower of Stalin, has finally met the inevitable fate of all old Bolsheviks. Ana Pauker's crime is undoubtedly that when it came to an issue of giving evidence of caring for Rumania sufficiently to seek means to avert its total absorption within the Soviet Empire. With the removal of Ana Pauker, the last barrier to the destruction of Rumania has been removed.

Just as a Russian general of Polish origin was placed at the head of Poland, thus trying that country into the Empire, so Rumania will now be made into a Russian province. The wheels of empire roll on.

In Korea, the war and the casualties continue. And the truce talks also continue, rather sporadically. There is no longer much to talk about, the subject having been exhausted. Nevertheless, the talking and the fighting go on simultaneously and hopelessly, perhaps to prevent even more intensive fighting. President Truman had hoped to get the Korean War out of the way before the Presidential campaign. In this he has failed and we have it with us to be used as an issue by any candidate who wants to delve into the mistaken Truman-Marshall-Acheson policies. Maybe no one will want to.

In Western Europe, there is something of a standstill. The Western Europeans are undoubtedly waiting on the American Presidential campaign and its outcome. While throughout Western Europe Eisenhower was preferred to Taft, it is obviously recognized by experienced statesmen that men seeking office and men in office act differently than they did when they carried through a policy fixed for them. Furthermore, the Western Europeans are already, in editorial opinion, holding their breaths as to how the election will eventually go. In a word, they are using this interlude to mark time.

European political doctrine has, since Chamberlain, been based on a theory of a balance of power among the European countries. In this category, Russia was generally regarded—certainly up to the Napoleonic Wars and the emergence of Alexander I—as non-European. For most of European history, the United States did not exist at all, and as a matter of historic significance, the United States played little or no part in the affairs of Europe until the Administration of Woodrow Wilson.

Now, Western Europe is caught between two non-European giants, Soviet Russia and the United States, whose concepts of politics and war, differing as they do from each other, are unrelated to the course of European history. It is for the Western Europeans, not so much a question of which way to turn as it is that perhaps by not doing anything, they could save themselves. Neither the United States nor Soviet Russia, however, rejects indecision or inaction. The American election interlude may give Western Europe a breathing spell.

War talk seems to have disappeared altogether—that is, in Europe. The Russians are busy consolidating their empire and purging their own ranks of dissident elements. The tyrant's grip is tighter on the satellite countries which, in the imperial process, are being reduced to provinces. It is to continue and complete this process that Stalin requires peace, and as long as he has peace he can gain in strength. For Stalin, therefore, the United States' preoccupation with its own Presidential election is a period of respite.

CORONARY THROMBOSIS

For several years I was medical referee for an accident insurance company and so learned that it was an accepted policy of companies engaged in transportation to grant permanent disability pensions to employees (when this plan existed in the company). At the time I thought this plan of giving the employee who had had an attack of coronary thrombosis a pension for life was not always a wise one.

Of course, it removed fear from the man, fear of insecurity in that he would always have a living pension but, on the other hand, he would carry the fear of another heart stroke the rest of his life.

What about heart strokes? Should these men not be allowed to engage in some kind of work? And as far as it being safe for these men to drive buses carrying passengers, the records show that before the heart attack occurs the driver always has time to draw to the side of the road and thus prevent an accident.

In the correspondence department of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. O. P. J. Falk, St. Louis University School of Medicine, states that his own personal experience is that the majority of patients recovering from their first attack of coronary thrombosis can return to an occupation not associated with undue physical strain or mental stress. "We have many cases among our records of men in all walks of life, including farmers, industrial workers, professional men and executives who are leading perfectly normal lives and experiencing no symptoms of difficulty. With any symptoms of difficulty we immediately advise cutting down on the work or stopping work altogether."

Dr. Falk points out, as a matter of fact, that coronary thrombosis takes place sometimes without the patient's knowledge or even that of the physician.

The records of the St. Louis Public Service Company show that no serious accident has ever resulted from the employment of such persons, even with the sudden death of a bus or street car operator because they were always able to stop or draw up before losing consciousness.

However, there are certain exceptions to the above. When the heart attack is unusually severe or the patient greatly fears another attack or complications are present as shown by the electrocardiograph he should be pensioned off.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed Note—The Pearson diagnosis of candidates in the wide-open Democratic race continues today with the spotlight on Sam Rayburn.)

Chicago—If a popularity vote were taken in the House of Representatives, the winner among the Democrats—perhaps even among the Republicans—would be an egg-bald gentleman from Texas who presides over the House with an iron hand, and who is affectionately referred to as "Sam". Speaker Sam Rayburn would be the ideal candidate for the Democratic ticket today if he were ten years younger. Just past his 70th birthday, however, Sam is not an active candidate, though if his friends had their way, he would be.

It has now been almost 40 years since Sam came up from the Texas prairies to sit in Congress. That was in 1913, during the administration of Woodrow Wilson. Sam has seen two great wars since then. He has weathered the Republican victories that swept many of his Democratic colleagues out of office. He has helped write legislation for six different presidents.

And through it all he has still kept his integrity, his idealism, and his sense of humor. Cornerstone of New Deal

Most people have forgotten it, but Sam Rayburn was responsible for writing most of the legislative cornerstone of the New Deal—the laws which no Republicans are likely to wipe off the books. As chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, it was Sam's job to push through the truth-in-securities act and the Securities and Exchange Commission which cleaned up Wall Street. The Holding Corporation Act which broke up some of the big utility combines; plus rural electrification, and the Federal Communications Act.

Few men in the past century can equal that record. Friends who have talked to "Mr. Democrat" about running for president don't get much encouragement. On the contrary, Sam talks seriously of retiring from Congress altogether.

His chief dream is to build a library in his home town, Bonham, Texas. He has already raised part of the money for the project.

has collected an old mantelpiece from the White House when it was remodeled and gathered together an assortment of gavel he used in presiding over joint sessions of Congress when addressed by Queen Elizabeth, Winston Churchill, General MacArthur, General Eisenhower, and others.

Sam has also made arrangements to take his congressional desk back home from Washington, and wants to set up an exact replica of his speaker's office. There, surrounded by the laws which he helped to write, the hearings he has held, and the records of the debates he has argued, Sam wants to sit and visit with the people he loves, and enjoy life.

Eisenhower and France

A number of readers have queried me as to what General Eisenhower actually said about atheism in France and the disintegration of the French moral fibre. They have also asked about the propriety of publishing his remarks, for fear it would play into Communist hands.

The answer to question No. 1 is that the general, in talking to the press and a group of delegates at Chicago on July 8, did criticize France for its religious and moral attitude. The newspapers did not invent his remarks. He volunteered them.

The answer to question No. 2 is that there wasn't the remotest chance of hushing up the General's statement, since it was cable to France by the press associations and by French newsmen within a matter of minutes. It was published in all the French newspapers the same day.

For instance, here is the "bulletin" which International News Service cabled to France: "Gen. Eisenhower said today France has 'gone astray' morally and declared one of the reasons is that the French brag that they are 50 per cent agnostic or atheist."

"He asserted France has reached the point where the moral fibre disintegrates, and added: 'One reason France has gone astray is that they brag that they are 50 per cent agnostic or atheist.'"

Other cabled dispatches to France were similar. Scrutinizing a Candidate Those who expressed the view that Eisenhower's statement should have been suppressed or not commented upon apparently forgot two things:

It is not possible for the United States any longer to live ostrich-like with our heads in the sand. As the most powerful country in the world, what our leaders do or say is cabled immediately to every part of the world.

One of the most important reasons for an election campaign is to gauge and size-up the candidate. To do that is necessary to know what he says, and what his judgment is regarding any and every important situation.

President Truman has been continually criticized, and rightly so, for making off-the-cuff statements which affect our foreign relations. If Eisenhower is addicted to the same habit, then the American public have a right to know it, in advance.

The fact that this criticism of an important ally came from a man who had been working daily among them, naturally hurt—for several reasons. The obvious one was that it gave ammunition to the Communists. But also important is the delicate situation in France with the Catholic leaders, who happen to be the best friends of the United States and the most vigorous opponents of communism.

The leaders of the French government today belong to the Catholic group. The statement that 50 per cent of France is agnostic or atheist will be construed by the enemies of the church as a reflection on the church, since France is officially a Catholic country.

But perhaps equally important, the Catholic group must have the cooperation of the moderate, non-Communist socialists and leftists in order to stay in power. On one side they face the Communists, on the other side the De Gaullists. Therefore, the present Catholic leaders must have the support of the non-Communist left, which is probably the group Eisenhower meant to criticize.

These are some of the political niceties so important in France today which the general, having lived for more than a year in France, presumably should know, and certainly must be able to deal with if he is to be an efficient president of the United States. AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, July 17—A member of the Republican national committee remarked without a twinge of concern in a private gathering a few nights ago that actually there was no truly Republican party left and that, in his opinion, the country would go Socialist in a few years. He thought General Eisenhower would only retard the slide.

I think he is right. Even Senator Taft, the Mr. Republican of the recent disturbance in the stockyards, has yielded to the trend in his votes on a few issues which fortified the national government in its encroachment on the constitutional rights of the states and the civic and human rights of the individual citizen.

His Taft-Hartley Act, condemned for demagogic reasons by President Truman and his cohorts as a violation of civic and human rights, but not in the sense complained of by Taft's opponents. It is perfidious because it concedes to the national government authority to regulate private business relations between individual workers and their employers. It not only presumes to empower the Labor Relations Board and other agencies of the national government to dictate the terms of such relations which are, after all, business contracts, but it compels multitudes of citizens to join private political organizations operating in the guise of voluntary protective associations. They are forced to pay tribute to political forces which work for socialism contrary to the rights of the citizen and the welfare of the nation.

Truman really was right in calling this Act a slave-law but only in the sense that it only firms the degradation of the citizen which was wrought by the earlier Wagner Act. It ameliorates his slavery but does not repudiate slavery as such. The foremost Republican thus gives his endorsement to a fatal blow to the citizen's sovereignty.

In New York Governor Dewey put through a so-called Fair Employment Law. He explained as background information to mollify the true Republicans of his following that he did this only because he knew that if he didn't, the Democrats, who are really Marxian Socialists, of varying hues, would pass a worse one.

The only remedy is repeal but that is now unthinkable. The fact that few cases have arisen does not mean that the employers like it or that the law would be constitutional and genuinely Republican even if they did like it. The likes and dislikes of citizens have been consulted too often, and often to their detriment and the irreparable injury of future generations, who, of course, are not consulted in these momentary desires of the present public. The fact that few cases have arisen simply means that the employers have given docile compliance in the belief they can't win. They are right, too. They can't.

The entire civil rights program concocted by the socialistic society called Americans for Democratic Action, or ADA, is unconstitutional, although more Fascist than socialist. Indeed, in their official report presenting and urging the enactment of these infringements of the national constitution, the committee that made the "inquiry" frankly anticipated objections on constitutional grounds but expressed confidence that the Supreme Court, as now packed by Roosevelt and Truman, would ratify these heresies. That ratification would make them constitutional and would also, of course, change the constitution by a process which the constitution itself does not recognize as any proper way to amend itself. If these matters ever be tested, the court probably will uphold them.

We might hit upon the Jackson presidency as the first recognition of the fact that Jackson's cynical proclamation of the spoils system, in which he not only boasted of his intention to commit wrongs but implied that wrong was right, gave the people to believe that government jobs were loot for the victors in political campaigns. The President then definitely ceased to be a servant of the nation with patriotic motives uppermost and became an agent of a majority of the people running the government primarily in the interests of his own adherents. These adherents could be attracted to his affections and promises and the vigor and vulgarity of his attacks on his opponent—none of them proper qualifications for a president.

Although he is an immortal hero to the Republican party, Abraham Lincoln revealed a fundamental misunderstanding of the Constitution when he resolved that government of, by and for people might not perish from the earth. The government prescribed by our Constitution was not a government by the people. It was a government of the people by a representative republic.

We shall never see the day when there is no National Labor Relations Act. We shall never see the repeal of the income tax law which totally destroys the citizen's right to the fruit of his labor and presents to Congress the power to wring every dollar of income from every citizen in the entire nation and seize his property and services for refusal to obey. We may one day see the end of the withholding process and the so-called baby sitters' amendment by a court action holding them unconstitutional. But the longer the delay the less likely it is that we shall see even a decision. The people have lost not only their civic conscience but their faith. They will write decisions with the fear in mind that honest decisions would cause terrible confusion and disappointment among millions of persons reliant on various aspects of social security for the additions to their income and cheerfully ignorant of the wrongfulness of these institutions.

"The Voice of the Press" EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

A considerable minority of editors questions whether General Eisenhower can unite, in his support, the factions of the Republican party so bitterly divided in the convention. But a large majority thinks the example already set by Senator Taft and Eisenhower, and the desire of all Republicans for victory in November, will result in GOP campaign unity. A principal minority question is whether Governor Dewey's influence will continue old party divisions. But the majority view is that General Eisenhower himself will set the course for Republican unity in the coming election campaign.

Hempstead (N. Y.) Newsday (Ind.): "The GOP convention was a bitter one. . . . But this bitterness has now been wiped out by Sen. Taft's gracious and wholehearted meeting with the new nominee. Taft has pledged his support to Eisenhower. The general, in return, has acknowledged that he must have the votes of those who favor Taft—and, more importantly, must have the support of Taft and his backers in the House and Senate. Sen. Bricker's speech announcing the dawn of an era of conciliation made this point in a most moving fashion."

Louisville (Ky.) Times (Ind. Dem.): "Despite the pledges of party solidarity, we find it hard to believe that the little group of stubborn, dedicated men who clung to Taft even at the end will work as hard for Eisenhower as they have worked for the senator who was their prophet and priest. At best these men are likely to give no more than perfunctory performance for the man who defeated Mr. Republican. The most disheartened may not do even that much. This, however, is all guesswork. From a Republican point of view it is gloomy guesswork."

Washington (D.C.) Post (Ind.): "The bitter fight between the Eisenhower and Taft forces both at the convention and before undoubtedly detracts from the value of the nomination. . . . If Senator Taft had won under these circumstances, the schism would probably have been overshadowed by the fact that the Republican column had split. But with Eisenhower's nomination, the split is less serious. Sen. Taft has many times pledged himself to support the winning ticket. Some Taftites will remain disgruntled, but they will have nowhere to go in November except into the Republican column."

Charlotte (N.C.) News (Ind. Dem.): "This was more than a struggle between two men. By and large, the bulk of the Taft supporters are in what is known as the Old Guard of the Republican Party. . . . They hoped, until the last, that a challenge for the more progressive Republicans would be turned back. Men can patch up differences, but ideas die slowly. Unless the supporters of Taft, especially those in the important industrial and agricultural areas of the great Midwest, give Eisenhower more support than they gave Governor Dewey in 1944 and 1948, victory may once again be snatched from the grasp of their party."

Kansas City (Mo.) Times (Ind.): "The campaign for the nomination was a battle. . . . But the delegates believed that after all the great issue was the need for a change in the administration at Washington. In the light of this overpowering fact, every candidate had pledged himself in advance to support of the convention nominee. So it may be expected that in accordance with the pledge of the candidates, reaffirmed after the nomination, ranks will close and the nominee will find himself the spearhead of forces united in their determination to win."

WCTU Holds Final Meeting of Season

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Kingston held its final meeting of the season Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. V. Gunther. Mrs. Frank Dunnagan led the devotions and reviewed chapters of the study book relating to drinking in the home and resultant problems.

Mrs. Dunnagan said that the use of liquor has increased in family life, especially in fashionable circles. Explaining the trend, she continued, "off sale liquor stores that provide no drinking place, and with bottle sales abundant, this new form of distribution has turned a vast amount of liquor into the refrigerators of the average home. Superior Court Judge Edwin M. Robson says that drinking in the home is causing divorce to spiral. Out of 300 cases in his court 72 per cent was directly or indirectly attributed to drink. He points out that the adults are not the greatest sufferers, but the innocent children are the real victims.

"It is also true that children following the example of parents, form the habit and early become alcoholics. There are at present some four million alcoholics in the United States. Alcohol is a habit forming narcotic drug, and alcoholism, a self-inflicted disease, and one very difficult to cure. Wise parents will not only leave liquor alone, but warn their children against the danger.

The problem is a real one especially among our teen-agers. In a recent survey, 11 per cent of alcoholics was found to have begun drinking before 19, and some as early as 10 years of age. In Massachusetts, 16,000 young people were arrested for drunkenness in one year. An appalling figure for our nation considering this is only one of the 48 states.

"Dr. Roy L. Smith said, continued the speaker, "by whatever standard we try to measure the liquor business, it is the sworn enemy of the Christian church. There is no social, moral or religious value which the church endeavors to build up, that the liquor business is not tearing down."

The ultimate goal of anti-liquor strategy, says a noted editor of a Journal of National Education, is to produce a generation of men and women with such a high regard for the sacredness of human personality, that no one who pretends to be intelligent will want to destroy his higher possibilities by the use of liquor." It is to this task, the women of the WCTU have united in a great crusade for total abstinence.

Mrs. William J. Whiston quoted from a magazine, Peoples Today, "telling of the drinking among congressmen in Washington." Mrs. Samuel G. Vaughn gave a description of a new device the liquor people have called a travel bar. Mrs. C. V. Gunther, in her paper, told how closely the "advertising boys of the liquor traffic are watching the legislative hoppers about now. They know the dregs are seeking a bill to ban interstate liquor advertising of all sort. They flock to Washington to block any possible bit of victory by the dregs on the theory, that an inch now may mean a yard next year.

"The WCTU also is active in Washington, as we have a representative there all the time, this is a sort of a worry to the brewers and distillers. They watch us, and we watch them. Last year 981 new unions were organized, and membership in the WCTU soared, and this when total abstinence is no more popular than arthritis.

"There are now 400,000 members in state, county and local groups, a net gain last year of 37,836, and the number is still growing. Our state convention will be held this year at Corning, October 13. In a time when our nation is spending six times as much for alcoholic beverages as for all religious causes, we seek to enlist many new members in our crusade for total abstinence."

At the close of the program, a short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. George W. Shultz, after which all enjoyed refreshments served by the hostess.

Meetings will resume in September.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

In the story about Governor Clinton's body being brought to Kingston during the 250th anniversary in 1908, I asked if anyone remembered the event or took part in it. Mr. Van Keuren, custodian of the downtown Recreation Center, said that Scott Van Keuren, his brother, worked at the time for William Green, a contractor. He took part in digging the grave at the old Dutch Church yard on Wall street and also helped set up the monument.

Every once in a while someone finds an old newspaper and brings it to me. The Kingston Daily Express newspaper office was down on lower Broadway, and Stock and Cordts were right across the street so it seems they patronized each other. The furniture store was having a special sale on Feb. 26, 1912, of discontinued patterns and floor samples. They had davenport for 25 dollars and up, and brass beds were going from $12.50 and up. The good old chifferoni were $6.50 and up. Furniture has changed in the past 40 years and I haven't seen a brass bed for a long time, even at second hand furniture stores.

There is quite a great deal in this February paper on the presidential election at the time. One headline reads: "Roosevelt enters the race for president" over a fine picture of Teddy Roosevelt. There was also talk of the Supreme Court running for the office. There is a lengthy story on the split of William H. Taft and Teddy Roosevelt. It was just as complicated as it is today. Teddy Roosevelt's letter with the famous words: "I will accept the nomination if it is tendered to me," was dated Feb. 24, 1912. This letter was written in answer to several governors who asked him to be frank about his views concerning the nomination.

Another Leader of July 28, 1914 tells about the annual St. Peter's Church picnic at the Oriental Pavilion at Kingston Point. The picnic started off with a tour of the city on the cars at 1 o'clock of the children and state Justice Charles E. Hughes of the Supreme Court running for the office. Fall Styles by European Designers European designers show their hand in these haute couture designs in wool from Italy and England. Coat in anthracite gray wool (left) is by Bellenghi of Florence. It is bordered with astrakhan and worn over a matching late day dress embroidered in black braid. Digby Morton of London does a lumber jacket travel suit (center) in shaded gray check sluing. New York—(N.Y.)—In England, Spain and Italy, top designers are making a bid for both business and fashion names with their fall designs.

European designers are adhering, generally, to the lines that have gained acceptance thus far in Paris—the suit with the bloused back, the slim, wrapped coat and the ensemble. But they are also imparting their own feeling to these lines and thus creating clothes of real interest. These designs represent, of course, the thinking of the haute couture. But they will influence the clothes worn by American women in every walk of life.

The bloused back suit sometimes has a lowered martingale; in other instances, the back is defined by a series of tucks or a snug hipline band. It is by no means "the" only suit look coming out of Europe. It is merely one of many but it's important.

The very slim, wrapped coat that creates a cocoon look is liked by European as well as American designers, for fall. Often, it has no buttons at all and must be secured under one arm and held there. Invariably, it tapers at the hemline and thus looks best on tall, slim figures.

The ensemble is important in the plans of European as well as American designers. It usually is based on a slim-lined dress topped by a coat in matching fabric, thus making a team that can split up at short notice and do the wardrobe work of two.

Diary Is Destroyed

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP)—Mary Astor's diary, regarded 16 years ago as too hot for public consumption, has been destroyed by court order. Superior Judge Stanley N. Barnes made the disclosure yesterday and said he supervised the burning of the document. He declined to discuss the matter further.

Tear Gas Drives 4,000 From Sob Singer's Show

Boston, July 19 (AP)—A homemade tear gas bomb was set off in the Metropolitan Theatre last night while Johnny "Cry" Ray, sob singer, was on the stage, driving an estimated 4,000 persons into street choking and gasping for air.

Police said four women were taken to hospitals and a dozen other victims were treated for nervous shock, hysteria and inflammation of the eyes in the theatre's offices.

Authorities said a panic was averted by the management's efficient handling of the situation and also by Ray himself, who called through his microphone to the excited audience.

The evacuation was orderly as patrons threw open emergency exits and guided long lines of gasping patrons to open air.

German Soldiers Reburied

Ni Degen, Germany (AP)—The last of the German Wehrmacht's World War 2 fallen soldiers have found their final resting place after seven years. They had been lying in temporary graves hastily dug during the desperate battles of early 1945 by the retreating Germans. The German War Dead Cemetery Organization has now moved them to new cemeteries in the Rhineland. One of these is the largest military cemetery in Western Germany. It lies in the Huertgen Forest, site of one of the war's bloodiest battles. The bodies of the Allied soldiers killed in the "Devil's Forest" as it was called by the American GI's were moved to large military cemeteries in Belgium and Luxembourg shortly after the end of hostilities. The Huertgen cemetery will be dedicated in a solemn ceremony late in August. Three thousand German soldiers are interred there. Their graves are marked by white stone crosses. But one third of the 3,000 graves are filled by unknown soldiers.

Reds Under Registration

Berlin, July 19 (AP)—Soviet-controlled East Germany today ordered registration of all persons between 16 and 65 to find out how many can be put into a new Red German army without crippling industry. By listing the seven and one-half million East Germans in employable age groups, the Communist authorities expect to discover where they can best get along with few workers. These areas will be given quotas of "volunteers" for a "defense army." The goal is a force of 375,000.

May Call Meeting

Helsinki, Finland, July 19 (AP)—United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie said today he has been empowered to call an extraordinary meeting of the General Assembly within a fortnight if the Korean truce talks prove successful. Nobody really knows what is happening in Korea right now except the participants in the truce talks, Lie told a press conference.

Half Day Mayors

Manila, July 19 (AP)—The town of Saxon has two mayors, one who presides over council meetings in the morning, one in the afternoon. Mayor Jose T. Baltazar, appointed by the central government and Mayor Jose Laxamana, appointed by the governor, have agreed to leave things that way until the courts decide between them.

Two Die in Duel

New York, July 19 (AP)—Two men fought a pocket knife duel to the death yesterday as a fascinated crowd looked on, afraid to stop it. Fighting in the street, they cut each other scores of times in 12 minutes. Both were killed. Police identified the two as Willie Kirkpatrick, 39, and Elmore Hayward, 40, both Negroes. Cause of the fight was not determined.

New York, July 19 (AP)—Gambler Frank Costello, scheduled to be jailed next week on a contempt of Congress charge, yesterday for a new trial. Costello's motion, filed with the Court of Appeals, permits him to remain out of jail until the Court of Appeals rules on the motion. Costello said in his motion that Federal Judge Sylvester J. Air-Cooled Cotton played by Theodore Lightner, the well-known New York expert. Did he complain about his hard luck? Of course he did. Teddy is undoubtedly the best moaner in top flight bridge circles. But then he proceeded to make the contract anyway, much to the disgust of East and West.

It was clear that by any ordinary line of play Lightner would lose two trumps and two diamonds. The only chance was to win enough tricks in hearts and clubs to get rid of three diamonds. In short, he had to take fineses in both clubs and hearts, with a shaking in each suit!

Lightner finessed the jack of clubs at the first trick. When it held, he took the ace of trumps and gave up a trump trick. A diamond came back, and he won with the ace.

Now he had to risk the heart finesse, whether he liked it or not. He made no secret of the fact that he didn't like it, but he tried the finesse, and it worked. Now he could get his three diamonds on the top clubs and the ace of hearts—and the shaky game contract was in.

Maybe it pays to be a pessimist!

WCTU Holds Final Meeting of Season

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Kingston held its final meeting of the season Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. V. Gunther. Mrs. Frank Dunnagan led the devotions and reviewed chapters of the study book relating to drinking in the home and resultant problems.

Mrs. Dunnagan said that the use of liquor has increased in family life, especially in fashionable circles. Explaining the trend, she continued, "off sale liquor stores that provide no drinking place, and with bottle sales abundant, this new form of distribution has turned a vast amount of liquor into the refrigerators of the average home. Superior Court Judge Edwin M. Robson says that drinking in the home is causing divorce to spiral. Out of 300 cases in his court 72 per cent was directly or indirectly attributed to drink. He points out that the adults are not the greatest sufferers, but the innocent children are the real victims."

"It is also true that children following the example of parents, form the habit and early become alcoholics. There are at present some four million alcoholics in the United States. Alcohol is a habit forming narcotic drug, and alcoholism, a self-inflicted disease, and one very difficult to cure. Wise parents will not only leave liquor alone, but warn their children against the danger."

"The problem is a real one especially among our teen-agers. In a recent survey, 11 per cent of alcoholics was found to have begun drinking before 19, and some as early as 10 years of age. In Massachusetts, 16,000 young people were arrested for drunkenness in one year. An appalling figure for our nation considering this is only one of the 48 states."

"Dr. Roy L. Smith said, continued the speaker, 'by whatever standard we try to measure the liquor business, it is the sworn enemy of the Christian church. There is no social, moral or religious value which the church endeavors to build up, that the liquor business is not tearing down.'"

The ultimate goal of anti-liquor strategy, says a noted editor of a Journal of National Education, is to produce a generation of men and women with such a high regard for the sacredness of human personality, that no one who pretends to be intelligent will want to destroy his higher possibilities by the use of liquor." It is to this task, the women of the WCTU have united in a great crusade for total abstinence.

Mrs. William J. Whiston quoted from a magazine, Peoples Today, "telling of the drinking among congressmen in Washington." Mrs. Samuel G. Vaughn gave a description of a new device the liquor people have called a travel bar. Mrs. C. V. Gunther, in her paper, told how closely the "advertising boys of the liquor traffic are watching the legislative hoppers about now. They know the dyes are seeking a bill to ban interstate liquor advertising of all sort. They flock to Washington to block any possible bit of victory by the dyes on the theory, that an inch now may mean a yard next year."

"The WCTU also is active in Washington, as we have a representative there all the time, this is a sort of a worry to the brewers and distillers. They watch us, and watch them. Last year 981 new unions were organized, and membership in the WCTU soared, and this when total abstinence is no more popular than arthritis."

"There are now 400,000 members in state, county and local groups, a net gain last year of 37,836, and the number is still growing. Our state convention will be held this year at Corning, October 13. In a time when our nation is spending six times as much for alcoholic beverages as for all religious causes, we seek to enlist many new members in our crusade for total abstinence."

At the close of the program, a short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. George W. Shultz, after which all enjoyed refreshments served by the hostess.

Meetings will resume in September.

Tear Gas Drives 4,000 From Sob Singer's Show

Boston, July 19 (AP)—A home-made tear gas bomb was set off in the Metropolitan Theatre last night while Johnny "Cry" Ray, sob singer, was on the stage, driving an estimated 4,000 persons into street choking and gasping for air.

Police said four women were taken to hospitals and a dozen other victims were treated for nervous shock, hysteria and inflammation of the eyes in the theatre's offices.

Authorities said a panic was averted by the management's efficient handling of the situation and also by Ray himself, who called through his microphone to the excited audience.

The evacuation was orderly as ushers threw open emergency exits and guided long lines of gasping patrons to open air.

German Soldiers Reburied

Ni Deggen, Germany (AP)—The last of the German Wehrmacht's World War 2 fallen soldiers have found their final resting place after seven years. They had been lying in temporary graves hastily dug during the desperate battles of early 1945 by the retreating Germans. The German War Dead Cemetery Organization has now moved them to new cemeteries in the Rhineland. One of these is the largest military cemetery in Western Germany. It lies in the Huertgen Forest—site of one of the war's bloodiest battles. The bodies of the Allied soldiers killed in the "Devil's Forest" as it was called by the American GIs were moved to large military cemeteries in Belgium and Luxembourg shortly after the end of hostilities. The Huertgen cemetery will be dedicated in a solemn ceremony late in August. Three thousand Germans are interred there. Their graves are marked by white stone crosses. But one third of the 3,000 graves are filled by unknown soldiers.

Reds Under Registration

Berlin, July 19 (AP)—Soviet-controlled East Germany today ordered registration of all persons between 16 and 65 to find out how many can be put into a new Red German army without crippling industry. By listing the seven and one-half million East Germans in employment, age groups, the Communist authorities expect to discover where they can best get along with few workers. These areas will be given quotas of "volunteers" for a "defense army." The goal is a force of 375,000.

May Call Meeting

Helsinki, Finland, July 19 (AP)—United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie said today he has been empowered to call an extraordinary meeting of the General Assembly within a fortnight if the Korean truce talks prove successful. "Nobody really knows what is happening in Korea right now except the participants in the truce talks," Lie told a press conference.

Half Day Mayors

Manila, July 19 (AP)—The town of Sordana had two mayors, one who presides over council meetings in the morning, one in the afternoon. Mayor Jose T. Baltazar, appointed by the central government and Mayor Jose Laxamana, appointed by the governor, have agreed to leave things that way until the courts decide between them.

Two Die in Duel

New York, July 19 (AP)—Two men fought a pocket knife duel to the death yesterday as a fascinated crowd looked on, afraid to stop it. Fighting in the street, they cut each other scores of times in 12 minutes. Both were killed. Police identified the two as Willie Kirkpatrick, 39, and Elmore Hayward, 40, both Negroes. Cause of the fight was not determined.

Diary Is Destroyed

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP)—Mary Astor's diary, regarded 16 years ago as too hot for public consumption, has been destroyed by court order. Superior Judge Stanley N. Barnes made the disclosure yesterday and said he supervised the burning of the document. He declined to discuss the matter further.

Heavy Mailing Completed

New York (AP)—The world's largest corporate enterprise, the 12 billion dollar American Telephone and Telegraph Co. recently completed the mailing of 1,100,000 letters, weighing approximately 30 tons, to its stockholders.

Gulls Seize Mice

Didsbury, Canada (AP)—Mother Nature displayed her powers at a recent plying competition here. The plovers turned up field mice by the hundreds, but as fast as the mice appeared, swarms of gulls swooped down for a feast.

Mopup Is Pushed

Hanoi, Indochina, July 19 (AP)—French union troops today pushed mopup operations against Communist-led Vietnamese forces in the Red river delta without meeting "organized resistance."

Moves for New Trial

New York, July 19 (AP)—Gambler Frank Costello, scheduled to be jailed next week on a contempt of Congress charge yesterday for a new trial. Costello's motion, filed in the Court of Appeals, permits him to remain out of jail until the Court of Appeals rules on the motion. Costello said in his motion that Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan's charge to the jury in the gambler's trial last April "virtually amounted to a direction of a verdict of guilty."

Army Career Ended

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower is no longer a military officer. His 40-year army career was ended yesterday with the official acceptance of his resignation by Secretary of the Army Pace. The five-star general wrote on July 12 that circumstances dictated his giving up his commission. He didn't mention that he planned to run for president.

Rights Are Restored

Vienna, Austria, July 19 (AP)—The Austrian Parliament voted last night to restore property and civil rights and give other benefits to thousands of former Nazis. Jewish leaders, who visited Parliament yesterday in a vain attempt to hold up action on the bills, expressed hope that the U. S. as one of the four occupying powers would veto the laws.

Yanks' Outfield Trio Vindicate Stengel's Claim as 'The Best'

Woodling, Mantle, Bauer Solid Group

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Casey Stengel got the horse laugh with his spring training boast:

"I've got the best outfield in the league."

Cleveland rushed up to lodge an objection, pointing to its Dale Mitchell-Larry Doby-Harry Simpson trio. Yankee fans wondered if Stengel had forgotten Joe DiMaggio had retired. Even Stengel weakened and traded two of his outfield crop—Jackie Jensen and Archie Wilson—with pitcher Spec Shea to Washington to get outfield help from Irv Noren.

But the averages show Old Case was pretty close to the truth with his first claim about the class of his New York Yankee outfield.

Gene Woodling, .335, is second in the American League. Mickey Mantle, .313, is a surging fifth. Hank Bauer, .302, is No. 10 in the league's top 10 hitters. Jensen, the big one that got away, is seventh at .309.

Two Key Homers
Bauer's three-run homer and Woodling's two-run blast gave the Yanks enough power for a 6-3 win over Chicago yesterday, although Chuck Stobbs and Howie Judson held the champs to six hits. Tom Gorman, called up from Kansas City early this week, won his second game with relief help from Johnny Sain.

Boston blasted Cleveland's Lou Brissie, making his first start in 13 months, for a 9-2 decision that kept the Red Sox 4½ games behind the Yankees.

Despite Marty Marion's desperate effort of 22 players, one short of the league record, his St. Louis Browns lost to Washington, 6-5, on a 15-hit attack that included three singles by Jensen.

Art Houtteman snapped a nine-game losing streak as Detroit edged Philadelphia, 2-1, with the help of Walt Dropo's fourth-inning home run. Before the game, they had an official weigh-in for little Bobby Shantz, the A's ace. He weighed 139½ and stood 5-foot-6½ inches.

Dodgers Stretch Lead

Brooklyn continued to belt the National's weakling, beating Pittsburgh, 6-2, for the 11th straight time. The Pirates made three errors and gave the Dodgers another run on a balk by Bob Friend, suffering his 14th loss. A fine relief job by Joe Black in the ninth saved an eighth win for Billy Loew.

The win boosted the Dodgers' lead over the New York Giants, who were rained out in Chicago after holding a 3-0 lead at the end of three innings. The Brooks' margin now is 6½ games.

Billy Johnson's first 1952 homer was a base-loaded smash off Max Surkont in St. Louis' 7-2 romp over the Boston Braves. Harry Breechen, winning his fifth with a six-hitter, did not allow a hit after the fourth.

The Philadelphia Phillies blew a four-run lead and came back with three in the ninth to save a fourth win for Jim Konstanty, third Phil pitcher. Frank Hiller was the loser. All Phil scores in the ninth came after two were out with singles by pinch hitter Smokey Burgess and Del Ennis driving home the runs.

Champions Clash In Women's Finals

Binghamton, N. Y., July 19 (AP)

—Defending champion Barbara Bruning, apparently near the peak of her game, matches shots today with veteran campaigner Mrs. Ruth Torgerson in the final of the Women's State Amateur golf tournament.

The 20-year-old titlist from Armonk shot the best golf of the tournament yesterday at the Binghamton Country Club in eliminating Mrs. Virginia Allen of Syracuse, 5 and 4.

Mrs. Torgerson, five-time state champ from Garden City, defeated Miss Dot Lowenstein of Scarsdale, 4 and 3.

Miss Bruning shot a two-under-par 74 to equal her record of the best women's score ever shot on the 6,200-yard course. She posted the same score in a practice round Sunday.

Mrs. Allen, speeded her own defeat by missing a two-foot putt on the 5th and three-putting the 11th. However, she had little chance of catching a foe who missed only one green of the first 14 holes.

Mrs. Torgerson, though not up to her best form, drew an opponent in a similar fix. She was out in 40—three over par—and wrapped up the match by winning the 13th, 14th and 15th holes. Miss Lowenstein carded a 42—her poorest round in the tourney—on the front nine.

FOR RESULTS — ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN

45 Are Rescued

to the fate of their missing fellows.

The four, they said, had leaped from the ship's poop deck into the water 35 feet below.

There was no immediate explanation of how the men survived without life rafts.

Due in New York Today

The Black Gull, which had been due in New York today, met tragedy some 200 miles from her destination.

The spot is about 65 miles southeast of Montauk Point, N. Y., which juts into the Atlantic as the easternmost tip of Long Island. It's about 75 miles south of the Breton Reef lightship off Rhode Island.

The crew of the 410-foot vessel was all Norwegian, including the skipper, a Captain Andersen.

A coast guard flier, Lt. William G. Fenlow of Oak Park, Ill., one of the first to fly over the vessel, said flames were blinding even at 3,000 feet in the air.

"The flames were a bright orange color shooting up about 25 or 30 feet high," he said. "There was also a heavy black smoke that reached about 1,000 feet up."

It was the second disaster in less than a year off Montauk Point.

A 45-foot fishing vessel, the Pelican, capsized a mile offshore from Montauk last Sept. 1 and sent 45 persons to their death. Nineteen persons were saved.

The Black Gull has been under charter for two or three years to the Black Diamond Steamship Corp., here, a Black Diamond spokesman said.

She operated between New York and Rotterdam, Hamburg and Bremen, carrying general cargo.

In addition to the naphthalene, she was loaded with general cargo worth scores of thousands of dollars, the spokesman said.

Starts Air Search

Lakeville, Conn., July 19 (AP)—Missing Connie Smith's father took to the air himself today to aid in the search for her. State police at the Canaan barracks reported that Peter Smith, wealthy Soudance, Wyo., rancher had chartered a plane at the Great Barrington, Mass., airport.

IN CONVENTION ASSEMBLED: 1948

In 1948, Democrats wanted Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, who led popularity polls. But "like" publicly declared he would not accept the nomination.

Thus President Truman, fresh from a triumphant "non-political" tour of the nation, was unopposed at the Philadelphia Convention until a civil rights platform prompted 35 Southerners to walk out. Those remaining hastily put up Georgia's Sen. Richard Russell.

Nominated on one ballot, Mr. Truman lambasted Congress with one of the most militant speeches heard since Bryan. Similar speeches were to win the tireless underdog November victory and a last laugh on the pollsters who picked Gov. Thomas Dewey.

Ballot boxes and ballot days are here again. The GOP has met in Chicago's million-dollar International Amphitheatre. On Monday, the Dems will be "in convention assembled" there. And out of the sound of speeches, bands, and the fury of balloting will emerge another candidate to vie for the people's votes—as two more conventions take their places in the larger amphitheatre of America's star-spangled political history.

CUTE RUSSELL—By combining a loud whoop, three out-sized campaign buttons and a poster, Phyllis Czarnecki gets across a hint of who is her favorite candidate for the Democratic nomination. She's a secretary at Sen. Richard Russell's convention headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago.

Decision Is Expected

Bridgehampton, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—A decision by the U. S. Department of Agriculture on whether to locate a hoof and mouth disease laboratory on nearby Plum Island is expected in ten days. At the final hearing last night only a few persons appeared to hear six speak for the plan and one oppose it. Then Panel Chairman W. A. Minor said he thought secretary of Agriculture Brannan would announce a decision soon. He estimated that 500 persons had attended the hearings this week and that 100 of them had objected to location of the research project on Plum Island.

Editors' Roundup

Dem.: "Taft's followers in the Republican convention felt bitterly toward Governor Dewey. Rightly or wrongly, they believe that Dewey has been directing the Eisenhower strategy. . . . They think he was a nominee who had his own chances, that by standing in Taft's way for the third time he injured a Republican who twice supported him and now should have been allowed to try to do what Dewey couldn't do. . . . The bitterness developed during the campaign and in the convention won't be lessened if Dewey looms large on the Eisenhower board of strategy between now and November."

Fire Suit Is Filed

New York, July 19 (AP)—A million dollar suit has been filed against the city in the Brooklyn tenement fire death of a mother and three children. Seven persons perished in the fire June 18. Paquita Arellano, sister of the dead mother, filed the suit yesterday. She accused the city and its housing, fire and welfare departments of negligence in enforcing safety laws. Truman Signs serving from 1947 through 1953 will receive the same employment credit under the social security system that was granted servicemen in World War 2.

An increase of 250 million dollars a year in federal contributions to the states will make it possible to increase assistance payments to five million dependent children and aged, blind and disabled citizens now receiving state help. The increases amount to about $3 a month for children and $5 a month for the rest, the President said.

Praises Doughton
Truman called the measure a legislative achievement for Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the House Ways and Means Committee who is retiring this year. He credited Doughton with leading the fight against the provision which drew his fire.

This, he said, supposedly preserved an individual's insurance rights in the event of disability, but was one in which "Congress takes away with one hand what it appears to give with the other."

The President said this was done by making the provision purportedly begin July 1, 1953, but adding a sentence saying it will cease to be in effect on June 30, 1953.

He said the House committee headed by Doughton recommended that aged persons whose disability had forced them into early retirement be permitted to have their benefits recomputed so that lost time would not count against them.

He said this objective was, in effect, "defeated in such a revealing example of how the Republicans dance when a well-heeled lobbyist pipes a tune that I think it warrants being brought to the particular attention of the American people in this election year."

The medical profession had objected to a system proposed for certifying disability, contending it gave the Federal Security Agency too much authority in prescribing rules for medical examinations.

Hits Lobbyists
The President said the "Washington lobbyist" for the American Medical Association attacked it as a "socialistic" proposal.

Truman quoted Doughton as saying there was no more socialized medicine in the provision "than there is frost in the sun."

Yet, when the House voted, nearly 70 per cent of the Republicans were against the bill, Truman declared.

The bill was sent back to committee, the President continued, and when the story got around as to what had happened a great number of Republicans apparently decided "they couldn't take the heat when they got caught, for when the bill was reported and again brought to the floor, only 12 per cent of the Republicans persisted in their opposition."

While the bill passed the House June 17, on its second try, the President said, "The American Medical Association lobby had accomplished what it wanted just the same." He said the month's delay in the House created such a situation that the Senate could act before adjournment only by dispensing with hearings. Faced with the Medical Association's demand to be heard on the disability provision, the President said, the Senate committee decided to drop it rather than schedule time-consuming hearings which might lose the chance for Senate action on the bill.

Colonial Lines Sell Out to Rickenbacker

New York, July 19 (AP)—A turbulent chapter in the history of Colonial Airlines appeared at an end today after the directors voted to sell the company to Captain Eddie Rickenbacker's Eastern Airlines.

By unanimous vote, the Colonial board yesterday accepted Rickenbacker's offer to acquire the airline's assets on the basis of two shares of Eastern stock for each share of Colonial shares.

Rickenbacker today issued a statement saying the Eastern-Colonial merger will result in "greatly expanded service to the public" and will also "eliminate the burden now imposed on taxpayers for subsidies for transportation of the mails by Colonial."

Catskill police charged Mrs. Bergeron with having passed fraudulent checks at Catskill, Athens and Coxsack. She is a former resident of Coxsack.

Friday Mrs. Bergeron failed to appear in Catskill police court to answer to the charge. Police reported the checks had allegedly been issued by the husband of defendant and she had endorsed them. According to police Mrs. Bergeron does not reside with her husband.

Stevenson's Latest

structions on how to vote on the first nomination ballot.
Although Gavin would not name the object of the President's political affections, Sen. Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina told a reporter he was informed by what he regarded as a reliable source that the President had tabbed Averell Harriman of New York.

Harriman, campaigning in all-out support of the Truman "Fair Deal" program, seems to have made little imprint thus far on convention delegates.

He has the public backing of New York's delegation, headed by State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick, and scattered support from some other western and northern states.

Fitzpatrick, who has been regarded as likely to swing to Stevenson if the Illinois governor could be coaxed into a receptive mood, was reported to feel that Harriman has just as good a chance as any other candidate if the convention develops into a marathon contest.

Ten Or More Ballots
The New York chairman was talking in terms of a possible 10 or more ballots on the presidential nomination.

Harriman himself denied after conferences with Kefauver that any "deal" was in the making. He said they discussed ways to keep the convention on a course where it would do "what's right and liberal."

There was any coalition of forces, Kefauver's friends thought it ought to be behind the Tennessee senator.

Backers of Russell countered with the prediction that the Georgia candidate—now openly bidding for Truman and labor support after having entered the race as the anti-administration candidate of the south—is gaining strength rapidly.

They said they expect some labor support and some votes from the pivotal Illinois delegation to lead the way for a break-through into northern delegations.

To the other camps, however, the Georgia senator appeared to be running on a treadmill propelled largely by southern delegations.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma plugged along behind the leaders, apparently content to let them sprint early in the hope that he could take over when they fell by the wayside.

The merry-go-round among the candidates always seemed to come back to Stevenson. The dapper Illinois governor puzzles and intrigues the party leaders.

When he flew into town yesterday, Stevenson told reporters in response to questions that (1) he is running only for re-election as governor, (2) would ask the 60-vote Illinois delegation not to put him in nomination or vote for him, (3) would resist outside efforts to start a boom for him, but (4) couldn't answer until he came to it what he would do about the "inconceivable" circumstances that he would be offered a draft nomination.

After a conference with Stevenson and other Illinois leaders, Jacob M. Arvey, Illinois national committeeman, emerged to say that if a deadlock develops: "I am certain he will accept the nomination and make a strong campaign."

Civil Rights Fight
All the confused maneuverings over the presidential nomination were being conducted at a powder race from which tailed the slow burning fuse of other fights over civil rights.

This took the form, in one instance, of the refusal of Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas to voice an unqualified "yes" to demands that a delegation he heads pledge support of the convention nominee.

Former Rep. Maury Maverick, heading a rival "loyalist" delegation, demanded in a committee hearing that Shivers be questioned on this point.

Shivers said he would abide by majority rule but refused to go further. That left the threat of a bolt hanging over the committee's forthcoming decision on the seating of the 52-vote Texas delegation and a similar 18-vote unpledged group from Mississippi.

From the pro-Truman side of the civil rights fence, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota demanded a strong statement in behalf of moves toward racial equality.

He predicted that the platform drafters will endorse such a plank, a result Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida discounted entirely.

Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, who heads the platform group, still hoped to come up with an acceptable compromise.

Display Planned At Uptown Theatre

Equipment which would be used in event of an atomic attack upon this city will be displayed on Wall street in front of the Kingston Theatre in conjunction with the showing on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of the March of Time film, And a Voice Shall Be Heard.

The film dramatizes the importance of communications in a large industrial city following a bombing attack.

On display will be a fire engine and a Kingston laundry truck equipped for rapid transformation into an ambulance, as well as various vehicles equipped with two-way radio systems. Several "walkie-talkies" will be in operation in front of the theatre, in addition to the three mobile units of the local defense organization, it has been announced.

The demonstration was planned to heighten interest in local Civil Defense measures and to assist in recruitment of volunteers, according to Sherwood E. Davis, local CD director. The 22-minute film was shot on location in Syracuse and uses no professional actors. Every scene is authentic in background and execution, and all Civil Defense volunteers play their real-life roles.

Another secret session was set for 11 a. m., tomorrow (9 p. m., Saturday, EST).

However, newsmen got the impression the secret sessions may end in a day or two.

This speculation was touched off when Brig. Gen. William F. Nukols, United Nations command spokesman, refused to discuss even the atmosphere during the 29 minute session at Panmunjom.

Nukols had described previous sessions as businesslike and devoid of propaganda. Saturday he said merely: "No comment."

Nukols also declined comment on whether either side had asked to terminate the secrecy and make public the discussions.

Harry S. Smyth of 236 Third street, New Dorp, Staten Island, a passenger in one of the cars involved in the second accident, was reported to be in "fairly good" condition at Kingston Hospital this morning.

The three-car accident resulted when a 1949 sedan, operated by Ted Krecki of 1515 North Spaulding street, Chicago, stopped for a red light at the intersection. This car was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by Carolyn M. Scarra of 307 Lafayette avenue, Staten Island, and the Scarra car was hit in the rear by a third vehicle, a 1952 sedan, driven by Alfred C. Banks of 219 Wheelock avenue, Millbury, Mass. Smyth was riding in the Scarra car.

The first car was damaged in the rear end, the second in the front and rear and the third in front.

In the first accident a car, operated by Richard Belsey of 104-14 67th road, Forest Hills, stopped for a red light and was struck from behind by a 1950 sedan, driven by Mrs. Belle Miller of 1148 East 27th street, Brooklyn. The first car was damaged in the rear and the second car in front.

Youth Is Fined $25 For Reckless Driving

Gerald R. Diers, 20, of 283 West O'Reilly street, pleaded guilty to reckless driving before City Judge Raymond Mino this morning and was fined $25 and his license revoked.

Diers was arrested by Officers George M. Dougherty and James Harbeck at 8:43 p. m. Friday while driving on the Strand toward Kingston Point, the report said.

The case of John Leski, 44, of 122 Newkirk avenue, charged with driving while intoxicated, was adjourned for one week.

Leski was arrested by Officer Earl F. Schoonmaker and Edward J. Leonard who said that Leski had struck a garbage can on the sidewalk in front of 138 Newkirk avenue. Leski was represented by Attorney Hubert Richter.

Move Is . . .

eran Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the platform committee, to find a solution.

If harmony moves fail, Dixie Democrats who bitterly oppose federal intervention in the field of racial relations must decide whether to surrender or battle it out on the convention floor.

Northern Democrats, led by such men as Senators Humphrey of Minnesota and Lehman of New York, claim enough pledged votes to write a tough civil rights plank.

They are openly taunting "the Dixiecrats" to accept it or take a walk as they did four years ago at the Philadelphia convention after a searing floor battle.

McCormack, House majority leader and seasoned by many similar scraps there, told this reporter:

"I am hopeful that the platform reported to the convention by this committee will be approved. Common sense would call for unity."

Meanwhile McCormack and his committeemen pushed ahead with public hearings on other phases of the new party platform at 10 a. m., EST, today. They listed more than 40 witnesses for testimony on almost as many different subjects.

McCormack said his committee need not reach its decision until next Monday or Tuesday, ahead of the Wednesday deadline for presenting the new platform to the convention.

Humphrey, who led the successful battle for a strong civil rights plank four years ago, said his side now has the votes both in the platform committee and in the convention.

Four 'Minimum Points'
Humphrey and his group have listed four "minimum points" for a civil rights plank.

They include: "Equal political participation" for Negroes and other minority groups; equal job opportunity, which probably means a federal compulsory employment practices commission; anti-lynch legislation; and equal treatment in the armed services.

Yesterday more than 30 witnesses offered suggestions for vote-getting planks.

Dr. Harold Urey and Elmo Roper, speaking for the Atlantic Union Committee, asked the party to call for "a convention of delegates of North Atlantic democracies to explore practical means" of revising the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

They said it should be "more economical, more effective in preventing another world war and in accord with the fundamental principles of government which have made the United States strong and free."

Leaves for Coast

Possible Steel . . .

would be necessary if the government did decide to attempt seizure of a small part of the industry under the 1948 Selective Service Act. The Defense Department would have to place direct orders with struck plants. If these were not filled within a specific time, the President could seize the mills.

The seizure provision of the Selective Service Act was not designed to deal with deadlocked labor disputes. Nor did the government consider it a practical solution at the time of the first seizure.

But the shortage of defense steel is becoming so acute the government may feel compelled to use the Act in an effort to get at least some critical types of steel back into production if this long-strike in steel industry's history continues much longer.

C. M. White, president of Republic Steel, said in Cleveland he was amazed at the report another seizure is being considered.

William J. Grede, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, issued a statement in Chicago that "on the eve of the Democratic convention the President shows his determination to seize property belonging to thousands of stockholders in one way or another."

Hits Truman's Stand

"We have now been several months without steel production because of the President's refusal to use the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. Does Mr. Truman want steel, control of the industry, or is he trying to buy votes?"

Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall told a news conference yesterday the government "very definitely repudiates" any offer made to the steel industry of a price increase higher than an average of $2.84 a ton.

When trans-Atlantic cables are raised for repairs, tons of oysters are found clinging to them.

Harriman, campaigning in all-out support of the Truman "Fair Deal" program, seems to have made little impact thus far on convention delegates.

He has the public backing of New York's delegation, headed by State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick, and scattered support from some other western and northern states.

Fitzpatrick, who has been regarded as likely to swing to Stevenson if the Illinois governor could be coaxed into a receptive mood, was reported to feel that Harriman has just as much a chance as any other candidate in the convention develops into a marathon contest.

Ten Or More Ballots
The New York chairman was talking in terms of a possible 10 or more ballots on the presidential nomination.

Harriman himself denied after conferences with Kefauver that any "deal" was in the making. He said they discussed ways to keep the convention on a course where it would do "what's right and liberal."

If there was any coalition of forces, Kefauver's friends thought it ought to be behind the Tennessee senator.

Backers of Russell countered with the prediction that the Georgia candidate—now openly bidding for Truman and labor support after having entered the race as the anti-administration candidate of the south—is gaining strength rapidly.

They said they expect some labor support and some votes from the pivotal Illinois delegation to lead the way for a break-through into northern delegations.

To the other camps, however, the Georgia senator appeared to be running on a treadmill propelled largely by southern delegations.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, plugged along behind the leaders, apparently content to let them sprint early in the hope that he could take over when they fell by the wayside.

The merry-go-round among the candidates always seemed to come back to Stevenson. The dapper Illinois governor puzzles and intrigues the party leaders.

When he flew into town yesterday, Stevenson told reporters in response to questions that (1) he is running only for re-election as governor, (2) would ask the 60-vote Illinois delegation not to put him in nomination or vote for him, (3) would resist outside efforts to start a boom for him, but (4) couldn't answer until he came to it what he would do about the "inconceivable" circumstances that he would be offered a draft nomination.

At a conference with Stevenson and other Illinois leaders, Jacob M. Arvey, Illinois national committeeman, emerged to say that if a deadlock developed:

"I am certain he will accept the nomination and make a strong campaign."

Civil Rights Fight
All the confused maneuverings over the presidential nomination were being conducted atop a powder keg from which trailed the slow burning fuse of other fights over civil rights.

This took the form, in one instance, of the refusal of Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas to voice an unqualified "yes" to demands that a delegation he heads pledge support of the convention nomination.

Former Rep. Maury Maverick, heading a rival "loyalist" delegation, demanded in a committee hearing that Shivers be questioned on this point.

Shivers said he would abide by majority rule but refused to go further. That left the threat of a bolt hanging over the committee's forthcoming decision on the seating of the 52-vote Texas delegation and a similar 18-vote unpledged group from Mississippi.

From the pro-Truman side of the civil rights fence, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota demanded a strong statement in behalf of moves toward racial equality.

He predicted that the platform drafters will endorse such a plank, a result Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida discounted entirely.

Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, who heads the platform group, still hoped to come up with an acceptable compromise.

Display Planned At Uptown Theatre

Equipment which would be used in event of an atomic attack upon this city will be displayed on Wall street in front of the Kingston Theatre in conjunction with the showing on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of the March of Time film, And a Voice Shall Be Heard.

The film dramatizes the importance of communications in a large industrial city following a bombing attack.

On display will be a fire engine and a Kingston laundry truck equipped for rapid transformation into an ambulance, as well as various vehicles equipped with two-way radio systems. Several "walkie-talkies" will be in operation in front of the theatre, in addition to the three mobile units of the local defense organization, it has been announced.

The demonstration was planned to heighten interest in local Civil Defense measures and to assist in recruitment of volunteers, according to Sherwood E. Davis, local CD director. The 22-minute film was shot on location in Syracuse and uses no professional actors. Every scene is authentic in background and execution, and all Civil Defense volunteers play their real-life roles.

Reds Are . . .

was light. Weather hampered allied air attacks.

The U. S. Fifth Air Force reported bad weather cut the allied air effort all week and losses to Red guns fell off in proportion. Two Sabre jets were shot down in aerial dogfights and two fighter bombers were lost to Red ground fire. In the dogfights, allied Sabre jets downed two Communist fighters.

Secret Sessions May End
Munsan, Korea, July 19 (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators met in their 12th straight off-the-record session today, but there was no indication progress was being made in settling the truce blocking issue of prisoner exchange.

Another secret session was set for 11 a. m., tomorrow (9 p. m., Saturday, EST).

However, newsmen got the impression the secret sessions may end in a day or two.

This speculation was touched off when Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, United Nations command spokesman, refused to discuss even the atmosphere during the 29 minute session at Panmunjom.

Nuckols had described previous sessions as businesslike and devoid of propaganda. Saturday he said merely: "No comment."

Nuckols also declined comment on whether either side had asked to terminate the secrecy and make public the discussions.

Two Accidents at 2:35 p. m., involved two cars and the second accident, reported at 2:40 p. m., involved three.

Harry S. Smyth of 236 Third street, New Dorp, Staten Island, a passenger in one of the cars involved in the second accident, was reported to be in "fairly good" condition at Kingston Hospital this morning.

The three-car accident resulted when a 1949 sedan, operated by Ted Kreckl of 1315 North Spaulding street, Chicago, stopped for a red light at the intersection. This car was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by Carolyn M. Scara of 307 Lafayette avenue, Staten Island, and the Scara car was hit in the rear by a third vehicle, a 1952 sedan, driven by Alfred C. Banks of 219 Wheelock avenue, Milbury, Mass. Smyth was riding in the Scara car.

The first car was damaged in the rear end, the second in the front and rear and the third in front.

In the first accident a car, operated by Richard Belsey of 104-14 67th road, Forest Hills, stopped for a red light and was struck from behind by a 1950 sedan, driven by Mrs. Belle Miller of 1148 East 27th street, Brooklyn. The first car was damaged in the rear and the second car in front.

Hint to Motorists

A loose valve plug may be the cause of lack of fuel at the carburetor. To overcome this difficulty, tighten the valve plug or, if necessary, replace the valve plug gasket.

Youth Is Fined $25 For Reckless Driving

Gerald R. Diers, 20, of 283 West O'Reilly street, pleaded guilty to reckless driving before City Judge Raymond Mino this morning and was fined $25 and his license revoked.

Diers was arrested by Officers George M. Dougherty and James Harbeck at 8:43 p. m. Friday while driving on the Strand toward Kingston Point, the report said.

The case of John Leski, 44, of 122 Newkirk avenue, charged with driving while intoxicated, was adjourned for one week.

Leski was arrested by Officer Earl F. Schoonmaker and Edward J. Leonard who said that Leski had struck a garbage can on the sidewalk in front of 138 Newkirk avenue. Leski was represented by Attorney Hubert Richter.

Move Is . . .

eran Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the platform committee, to find a solution.

If harmony moves fail, Dixie Democrats who bitterly oppose federal intervention in the field of racial relations must decide whether to surrender or battle it out on the convention floor.

Northern Democrats, led by such men as Senators Humphrey of Minnesota and Lehman of New York, claim enough pledged votes to write a tough civil rights plank.

They are openly taunting "the Dixiecrats" to accept it or take a walk as they did four years ago at the Philadelphia convention after a searing floor battle.

McCormack, House majority leader and seasoned by many similar scraps there, told this reporter:

"I am hopeful that the platform reported to the convention by this committee will be approved. Common sense would call for unity."

Meanwhile McCormack and his committeemen pushed ahead with public hearings on other phases of the new party platform at 10 a. m., EST, today. They listed more than 40 witnesses for testimony on almost as many different subjects.

McCormack said his committee need not reach its decision until next Monday or Tuesday, ahead of the Wednesday deadline for presenting the new platform to the convention.

Humphrey, who led the successful battle for a strong civil rights plank four years ago, said his side now has the votes both in the platform committee and in the convention.

Four 'Minimum Points'
Humphrey and his group have listed four "minimum points" for a civil rights plank.

They include: "Equal political participation" for Negroes and other minority groups; equal job opportunity, which probably means a federal compulsory employment practices commission; anti-lynch legislation; and equal treatment in the armed services.

Yesterday more than 30 witnesses offered suggestions for vote-getting planks.

Dr. Harold Urey and Elmo Roper, speaking for the Atlantic Union Committee, asked the party to call for "a convention of delegates of North Atlantic democracies to explore practical means" of revising the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

They said it should be "more economical, more effective in preventing another world war and in accord with the fundamental principles of government which have made the United States strong and free."

Leaves for Coast

New York, July 19 (AP)—Gov. Earl Warren, of California, left for Sacramento today from La Guardia Field after a six-day holiday in New York city with his family. The governor was accompanied by Mrs. Warren, two daughters, Nina, 18, and Dorothy, 21, and his secretary, Richard McKinney.

6. DO I KNOW THE BRAND, GRADE OR QUALITY OF MATERIAL I AM GETTING?

7. IN THE EVENT I PAY FOR THE JOB ON AN INSTALLMENT BASIS, DO I KNOW WHAT FINANCE COMPANY WILL HAVE MY NOTE?

20 Years of Experience

would be necessary if the government did decide to attempt seizure of a small part of the industry under the 1948 Selective Service Act. The Defense Department would have to place direct orders with steel plants. If these were not filled within a specific time, the President could seize the mills.

The seizure provision of the Selective Service Act was not designed to deal with deadlocked labor disputes. Nor did the government consider it a practical solution at the time of the first seizure.

But the shortage of defense steel is becoming so acute the government may feel compelled to use the Act in an effort to get at least some critical types of steel back into production if this long strike in steel industry's history continues much longer.

C. M. White, president of Republic Steel, said in Cleveland he was amazed at the report another seizure is being considered.

William J. Grede, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, issued a statement in Chicago that "on the eve of the Democratic convention the President shows his determination to seize property belonging to thousands of stockholders in one way or another."

Hits Truman's Stand
"We have now been several months without steel production because of the president's refusal to use the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. Does Mr. Truman want steel, control of the industry, or is he trying to buy votes?"

Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall told a news conference yesterday the government "very definitely repudiates" any offer made to the steel industry of a price increase higher than an average of $2.84 a ton.
